

Falter wins 4th of July T-shirt design contest

BY AMANDA GELDHOF
CRIER CORRESPONDENT

WILMINGTON

Wilmington high school junior Kayla Falter won the 4th of July T-shirt design contest put forth by the 4th of July Committee this year. Falter's design will grace the front of the committee's T-shirts this coming Independence Day.

Falter created the design as an assignment in her graphic design class at WHS.

"I knew I wanted to do fireworks and the red, white and blue," Falter said. "I just thought of the theme of the 4th of July and brought it all together."

She said she used the design program Adobe Illustrator to create the winning design, which was a little more difficult than she anticipated. As with any contest, this one had rules, parameters. The design had to measure ten inches by ten inches and could have no more than five colors; with the classic red, white and blue color scheme of the holiday, it didn't leave Falter with much wiggle room for color choices.

"I started off simple and then I was like I can create more things," Falter said. "I got more into it. I would do it and then I would have to rearrange things and delete things." She said she went through five drafts over the course of a week before she decided on the final design.

Falter's graphic design teacher, Jen Fidler, said Falter's design is something new.

"I love it. I think it's a very fresh design, something very different from what I've seen in the past," Fidler said. Fidler has been teaching graphic design 1 and 2, animation and digital video at WHS for 10 years. She said she has assigned this project every year.

"It's been a class assignment for the ten years that I have been here [WHS], and the teacher before me also worked with the 4th of July Committee," she said. "So, call it tradition."

T-shirts with the winning design will be sold by the 4th of July Committee at the 4th of July building during the week of celebrations. Falter said while she is a fan of the holiday celebrations in Wilmington, she especially likes the carnival.

"It's just the rides and everyone being together," she said. "It gives us something fun to do."

A veteran speaks...

Rico Russo's final chapter

decades so very long ago.

Last time Rico told us about his experiences in World War II while he served in the U.S. Navy as a gunner aboard a supply ship, the S.S. Theodore Sedgwick, and his travels to Karachi, India and Le Havre, France. His next assignment was aboard the S.S. Rosemont where he sailed to the Mediterranean and docked in Naples, Italy and then Leghorn (Livorno) Italy encountering German U-Boats in his travels.

Rico resumed his story and recalled memories aboard the third ship he served on in July of 1945, the S.S. Thomas Sim Lee saying, "It was a huge supply ship that was fully loaded. There was a strictly followed rule that no orders would be given until the ship was an hour at sea. When their assignment was given, the destination revealed was Russia." No one wanted to go there as the ship had to go through Torpedo Alley to get to Murmansk, Russia.

Torpedo Alley was a 100-mile stretch of water off the outer banks of North Carolina near Cape Hatteras. It was named Torpedo Alley because German U-boats preyed upon convoys that transported supplies from America (Halifax, Canada) to Murmansk, Russia. The Germans sank 400 ships between 1942 and 1945 and over 5,000 civilians and merchant marines were slaughtered in this graveyard of the Atlantic Ocean.

Rico tells of that treacherous journey to Murmansk, Russia in July of 1945 recalling, "As we went past Nova Scotia we were informed that there were three German sub pens in our way. [A submarine pen or U-Boat-Bunker in German is a bunker that is designed to protect submarines from air attack.] We got through the first one on high alert but there were no disturbances, however, at the second one, all hell broke loose. The ship behind us (on our stern) got torpedoed and the ship in front of us (on our bow) got torpedoed. Then, a ship on our starboard side got torpedoed. On our port side we spotted a periscope. We lowered our guns to try to shoot the periscope but the shells skimmed off the water and hit the foreign ships on the other side which were friendly ships."

Continuing, Rico recalls, "After that I went up to the stern to assist with the gun turret. The gun was jammed so I went downstairs to the main deck for a part and, as I turned to go back to the stern, I saw a torpedo coming at us only about 10 feet away. So, I put my hands on the stern to manually pull the ship forward, and it worked. The torpedo passed us by about six inches. I learned a spiritual lesson then. If it's not your time to die, you're not going to die."

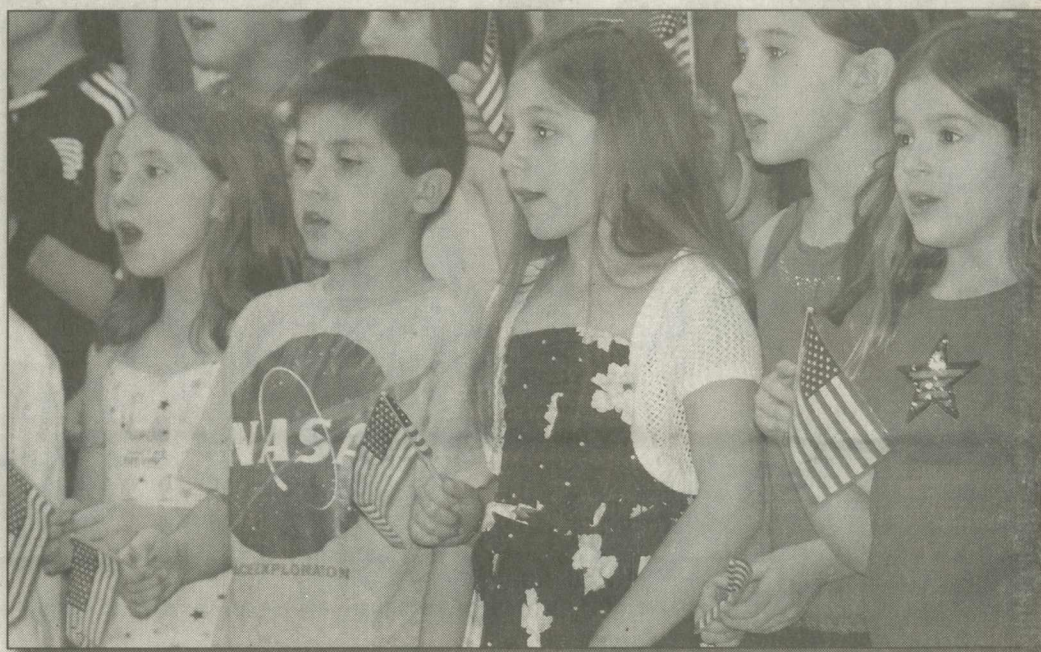

"We cleared the third sub pen with no action but that's when the storm hit. Our ships were only about 1,000 ft. apart but I couldn't see them at all. We lost 5 ships out of approximately 15 - 20 ships in that run," said Rico.

"It wasn't only submarines that the crew of the Thomas Sim Lee had to watch for. On the way to Murmansk, USSR, the crew had to lower cargo booms to salvage bodies [looking for dog tags] in the ocean from ships that had been torpedoed, always mindful of the floatsman floating nearby in which the Germans had hidden mines," recalled Rico.

Rico continued, "Now for the finale [of their trip to Murmansk]. Just outside of Murmansk, the fighter planes came in to salute us. The Germans had annihilated the area of Murmansk. We were there for three days to unload supplies. On our way back, we had to go by three sub pens. We encountered a U.S. submarine and we heard the crew yelling, the war's over! We then escorted eight German submarines back to Nova Scotia, Canada."

When Rico was a young boy, he wanted to spend time in every branch of the service and he almost accomplished that boyhood goal having served in the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Army National Guard and the U.S. Air Force. While serving in the Navy during World War II, he was awarded European, Pacific, and American Theater Ribbons as well as the Victory Medal. For his service in the Air Force, Rico was awarded the ETO Ribbon, the American Theater Ribbon, a Victory Medal, a Berlin Aircraft Ribbon and Air Crew Wings.

Rico separated from the U.S. Navy in 1946 and enlisted in the Army National Guard later that year where he served until 1947. That same year he joined the U.S. Air Force and was sent for rehabilitation training at Ft. Slocum in New Rochelle, New York for six weeks. After his training, Rico was assigned to the motor pool at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee, MA for a few months before being sent to Travis Air Force Base in California for permanent assignment to a base.

"I was assigned to Hickam AFB, Hawaii where I attended Flight Steward School. Then, I was assigned to the Military Air Transport Service, Pacific Air Command Division, which covered the whole Pacific. Mostly we flew high-ranking military and civilian government personnel to Tokyo, with stopovers at Guam, Iwo Jima, Kwajalein or Eniwetok, which was the site of U.S. Atomic testing between 1948 and 1958. Guam was one of the areas where albatrosses (which we called gooney birds) came to nest and, unfortunately, they attracted swarms of sharks," said Rico.

Continuing, Rico recalled, "On one of our flights on our way to Tokyo, we stayed overnight in Guam and, as we took off in the morning, one of our engines died, which forced us to return to Guam. We unloaded and prepared to take up another ship. Within two hours we were airborne again, same crew, different passengers. Ten minutes into the flight there was a loud bang and the plane shook violently. Once again we returned to the base and again we unloaded. The third plane we loaded was called an "air evac" which consisted of wounded military. We had about 50 litter patients, 75 ambulatory patients, and a medical staff consisting of four nurses, and two doctors. After the previous two aborts, I was extremely apprehensive about this flight. The plane was secured and we took off. Again, we experienced engine trouble and started losing altitude fast. We were so low that, as I looked out the window, I could see huge sharks completely circling the island. Fortunately, it was not our day to die because we landed safely. After three aborts, we returned to Hickam AFB as "deadheads".

"The Cold War with Russia had started. From Hickam AFB I was sent to Weisbaden, Germany to take part in the Berlin Airlift (from 1948 to 1949) that brought much needed supplies to West Berlin. Crews airlifted two million tons of supplies in 270,000 flights in what was called the largest humanitarian campaign the world had ever seen. We were supposed to rotate every 3-4 months but we were ordered to serve 14 months without leave.

After the Berlin Airlift was over I went back to Hawaii where I continued flying until I was discharged on November 6, 1951 and returned to civilian life," said Rico.

During a regularly scheduled physical exam for pilots at Hickham AFB, doctors determined that Rico should either take an honorable discharge with a disability or stay in Hawaii for the rest of his service. Subsequently, Rico accepted the honorable discharge. Due to his disability, he could not continue with his goal to enlist in the U.S. Marines or U.S. Army.

Having completed his service abroad to his beloved country and unable to serve in other branches of service, Rico went to work for the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers, first in Waltham, MA and later at Hanscom AFB in Bedford, MA.

According to Rico, WWII veterans were treated with great respect and, with the GI Bill, veterans could buy a home and educate their children as well. With that bill in effect, Rico was able to send four children to college.

Having just celebrated another Memorial Day, hopefully Rico's memories will give our readers insight into the adversity our brave men and women faced in wars long ago and they will gain even greater respect both for veterans of those wars and every war since then.

It was my pleasure to meet Rico. I walked away from both interviews with a greater understanding and appreciation of veterans of WWII and the Korean War. Rico brought those wars to life with his detailed accounts of events and I will truly never forget him and the other heroes who fought valiantly for our country so very long ago.

It's Your Money
ESTATE PLANNING FOR
BLENDED FAMILIES

"Your, Mine and Ours" was a domestic comedy some years ago about a "blended" family and the efforts to bring together and bring up the children that each parent brought from a previous marriage as well as those they had together. Today, such a family may be the norm.

Unless a prenuptial agreement has settled the issues, estate planning must ensure that the spouses and all the children are protected. At the very least, each spouse should have a will that specifically details disposition of assets. Leaving everything to a spouse is a dangerous gamble that could disinherit some of the children. Similarly, leaving money to the children can be a problem; a wife is generally entitled to a portion.

And if the children are young, who will be their guardian and trustee of the estate? A long-term discretionary trust can be administered by a trustee of your choosing, not the court's. Older couples will need to cover different issues, of course.

Today's tax laws may color future estate planning. Talk to us at

Letters to the editor

Collings regrets signing appeal

Dear Editor,

This letter is in regards to my signing a petition of appeal to the Conservation Commissions approval of the Wilmington High School building project. While talking with a group of gentleman on a Sunday morning recently, we were approached and asked if we would sign said appeal. Was I misled at the time? NO! Did I realize the ramifications of my signing my name to this appeal? Without question, a resounding NO!! I never imagined doing so would cause the problems that it has and for that I am truly sorry. The voters overwhelmingly approved the building of a new high school and, in the long run, I am sure the town will be better for it. It is said that hindsight is 20/20 and that is certainly true in my case here. I would honestly say that I got "Caught up in the moment" and, although it can't erase the mistake I myself made, I will give long, hard thought to anything I am asked to put my name on in the future! I can only hope that the entire project moves forward without any more needless delays and that others can learn a lesson from my blunder.

Sincerely and with regret,
I remain,
Walter Collings

Let the process play out

Dear Editor:

I have written today in an attempt to clarify a lot of misinformation about the second 10 resident group request for superseding order of conditions filed with the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) in association with the new high school project. The first Notice of Intent (NOI) prepared by the Town for this project was largely specific to on-site issues associated with the new artificial turf field. It is my understanding, that as a result of the deficiencies with the Town's first NOI, identified within the first group appeal, the Town was compelled to withdraw the first NOI!

The second/current NOI prepared by the Town addresses issues associated with the entire project, many of which were not included in the first NOI. Similarly to the first group wetlands appeal, the second appeal is attempting to correct deficiencies with the second NOI. Points of possible deficiencies include, but are not necessarily limited to the following: on-site mitigation (potential student safety issues associated with the removal of the warning track on the high school baseball field); off-site mitigation (the removal of the rear parking lot at the Town Park, the Pedway between the Wildwood School and Federal Street, and the sidewalk on Nathan Road); the Alternatives Analysis associated with the installation of the artificial turf field and associated tire crumble (aka flash frozen and smash used vehicular tires and other unknown rubber sources) within the riverfront area; petroleum contamination within the Activity and Use Limitation (AUL) Area and proposed stormwater discharges into the area of contaminated soil; and the very loose manner in which the Order of Conditions issued by the Wilmington Conservation Commission requires the Town to document what and/or when, on and off-site mitigation activities are actually performed.

After listening to the Comments from the Board of Selectmen at the May 29, 2012 meeting, it is obvious to me, that the board members are ignorant of many facts and/or regulatory requirements associated with this VERY COMPLICATED wetlands filing that the Town Manager attempted to RAM through the public hearing process as fast as possible (which did not allow for a complete review). I ask that the public allow the regulatory review process to proceed in the only manner allowed to us, as a direct result of how the Town Manager and the High School Building Committee has put forward the project.

If any residents are interested in reading the Town's NOI or the group wetlands appeal, all the information associated with this project is available for public review at the Planning and Conservation Commission Office at Town Hall.

Respectfully,
George Lingenfelter

Training wheels

By SCOTT J. MULLOWNEY

Staff Columnist

It was a simple sight: A mother's guiding arm around her young son as he navigated his bicycle over a bumpy sidewalk. The bike's training wheels helped him keep his balance as much as his mother's protective arm did.

I remember my oldest son's first experience on a two-wheeled bicycle. He felt he was ready for his training wheels to come off and he was anxious to test his skill. His mother and I took him to the parking lot of the Stone Zoo early on a sunny morning. This was in the days before children needed to wear bicycle helmets by law. Wearing a bike helmet was left to the discretion of parents. Most parents, myself included, neglected this small but important rule of the road. We never had to wear helmets when we were kids and we turned out fine (more or less). We take every precaution to keep our children completely safe, but a helmet for a fragile young head was not necessary. When the helmet law passed, parents everywhere agreed sometimes change is good.

I unloaded my son's bicycle from the back of my car and put it in his eager hands. He couldn't wait to peddle into the wind, on his own, without the training wheels that held him up for the past few months. I ran beside him as he rode. My hand held the bicycle seat lightly, letting him balance himself as he glided along.

"Let me go! Let me go!" he shouted, wind in his hair, sun in his eyes, smile on his face. It was hard but I knew I had to let go, to let him fly on his own, to take this baby-step toward independence. He flew across the smooth asphalt, to the other side of the parking lot.

"Wow, he's doing great!" my wife said. "His first time without training wheels and he's a natural."

We watched in horror as he drove into the curb on the other side of the lot. He tumbled to the ground with a thump as his bicycle wrapped around him. His head hit the hard pavement. Blood trickled down his head from the gash darkening his blond hair. Tears flowed down his face as he screamed in pain.

"I forgot how to stop!" he cried through his tears.

Luckily, the New England Memorial Hospital was still open at the time. We rushed across the street to the emergency room. The doctor stopped the bleeding. A couple of stitches later, my son was good as new - happy, smiling and riding his bicycle (with a helmet firmly atop his head from that moment on). Live and learn as they say.

My other son never needed training wheels. He knew instinctively how to ride a two-wheeled bicycle from the moment he picked one up when he was three years old. He jumped on, drove off, and never looked back. Maybe he learned from watching his older brother. The street we live on is relatively quiet, so we instructed him to stay to the side of the road and watch out for cars. My wife sat on the front porch to keep an eye on him as he rode up and down the street. She called to me from the porch.

"Come outside for a minute. You have to see this," she said.

When I stepped outside, my youngest son flew by the front of the house on his bicycle, holding onto the handlebars - while standing up on his bicycle seat!

I tried to disguise my panic.

"Well, he can always get a job with the circus," I said.

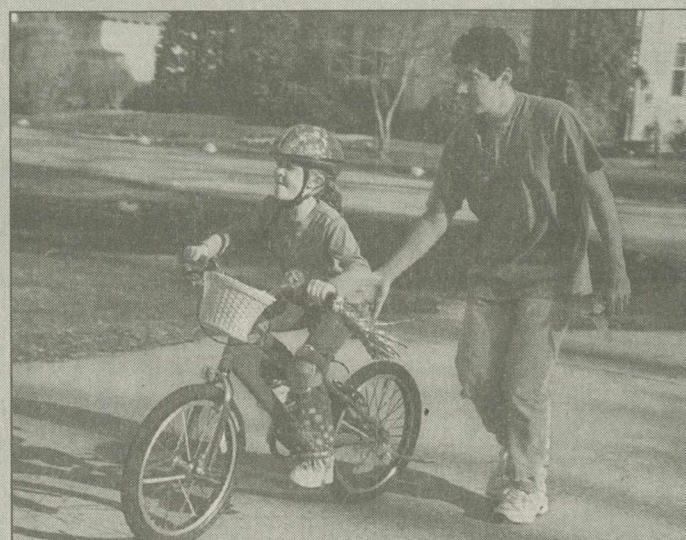

I waited for him to pull over so as not to alarm him until his feet were on solid ground.

"Do not ride like that again please," I said sternly. He looked up at me, helmet too big for his tiny head, his blue eyes wide with joy. "Why not? That was fun!"

"Not for your parents," I said.

Today I watched a young mother escort her bicycling child across South Street and into the schoolyard. She breathed a sigh of relief as her child cautiously peddled into the fenced-in safety of the basketball court. Here she could monitor and moderate her child's activity. I wanted to tell her to enjoy this short-lived luxury while she can.

My two boys, now men, are both driving their own cars. No training wheels. No parental arms around them. Their only guidance is my voice in the back of their heads whispering prayers of safety for them as they navigate the streets and highways. They carry with them everything I taught them. I hope they remember the lessons they have learned as clearly as I do.

TMHS All Night Long thanks local businesses and volunteers

Dear Editor,

Immediately following the TMHS graduation, the 17th annual All Night Long Graduation Celebration took place at TMHS. An army of volunteers planned for months and worked throughout the day and evening to transform the school into a place that was unrecognizable to the graduates when they first entered. There were themed areas including a beach, New York City, Mardi Gras and the Old West. The gymnasium was a giant playground including a mechanical bull, giant obstacle course, Fenway Park and a casino. More volunteers came and chaperoned the event itself and helped provide the grads a safe, food and fun-filled night which ended with All Night's hysterical and now traditional hypnotist show. When the grads left at 5:00 am, their parents arrived to put everything back in place.

The All Night Long Committee sincerely thanks the many volunteers for their commitment to our community. An event of this size and scope cannot take place without continued help and support. Next year provides a huge challenge as the graduation ceremony will take place in the new school. We have not been assured a permanent home for our decorations and supplies. It is our sincere hope that the community will come together and find a way to keep this great tradition running. To help, please contact TMHSallnightlong@gmail.com.

All Night Long cannot happen without the help of so many generous sponsors from our community.

Please show them your gratitude by supporting

Jose, Danny and Cyrus braved the torrents of rain this past weekend on Pack 56's annual end of year camp out. Here they are cooking marshmallows over a fire, in the rain. The scouts had a great time camping out. Scouting is always fun, even in bad weather. Danny, the youngest, wants to go again! This was his first time camping. Operation: Military Kids

READING - Massachusetts Operation: Military Kids (OMK) reaches out to military kids to let them know that their communities recognize they are heroes too.

Did you know there are about 13,000 military youth in MA? That some of these youth could be living in your community? That most if not all of these youth will be separated from their loved ones at one time or another due to military deployments?

If you would like to do something to show these children you care, then plan to attend the Operation Military Kids (OMK) team meeting on June 13 from 7-9 pm. The team will share what OMK is currently doing in the region and statewide and seek ideas from the community in support of these military youth. Please join us.

Support Rule 28

Dear Editor,
Under One Party Rule, the Massachusetts House of Representatives is not "democratic." Leadership kills bills by referring them "To Study," where bills die without debate.

The "Rule 28 Coalition" wants to change this status quo, which has gone on for some 30+ years. House Rule 28 allows a majority of representatives to force the discharge of any legislation from the traditional committee structure. (For details, see: www.rule28.com.)

Rep. Miceli supports this death penalty for bills of which the Speaker does not approve.

Do you?

Legislators in neighboring communities - plus Rep. Charles Murphy (D)

Wilmington and Rep. Paul Adams (R) Tewksbury - have signed on to the "Rule 28 Coalition."

Loyally voting in lock-step with the Speaker does not decrease spending, lower taxes, or reduce regulation on the small businesses which are the engine of economic revival.

As a Candidate for the Massachusetts House of Representative and as a town Selectman, I support the goals of the "Rule 28 Coalition."

It's time for Wilmington and Tewksbury to urge Rep. Miceli to vote for Democracy in the House, and to join with our other Representatives to support the "Rule 28 Coalition."

Russo family thanks

We would like to express our sincere appreciation for all of the kindnesses extended to us as we mourn the loss of the extraordinary father of our family. We want to especially acknowledge Margaret McKenna of Nichols Funeral Home, whose warmth, compassion and gentle humor made the funerary process bearable for us. With a few simple questions, and her own knowledge of our father through their talks at "the Fence" during Wildcat football games, she was able to capture his life on paper. We will treasure forever the obituary she created for him. Lou Cimaglia visited our father for a brief meeting about veterans' benefits and ended up entranced by the wartime stories he heard. He gave our father two very special gifts: a hat with the logo of the Naval Armed Guard which our father loved, and an introduction to Marcy Ragucci of the Wilmington Town Crier. Our father was overjoyed to have in Marcy such an engaged and sympathetic listener. We feel blessed many times over that she wrote two stirring and inspiring tributes to our father's adventures as a young man in the military, the first of which he was able to proudly read a few weeks before he passed away.

Sincerely,
The Russo Family

Vispoli and ethics reform

Dear Editor,
I am glad Alex Vispoli, candidate for Senate, is calling for ethics reform on Beacon Hill. It is time we got rid of the people who make the laws and cannot seem to obey them. Alex has been an Andover Selectman for over 8 years and during his tenure he has proven to be a very honorable individual. I know when he is elected to the Senate we can count on him to not only serve honorably, but also fight for the needed reforms to clean up the mess. It is important the Republicans nominate a candidate who has not been fined due to illegal campaign activities. That's why I am with Alex Vispoli.

Crier Summer film series...

Visit the Best Exotic Marigold Hotel

CATHERINE FRANCIS
CRIER INTERN

After I ran five minutes late to the cinema (missing all the previews might I add), after I find a seat in theater, and after I opened a bag of Reese's Pieces, I began to watch The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel. With the stars of Maggie Smith, Judi Dench, and Bill Nighy amongst other great actors and actresses, I must say that I thoroughly enjoyed the film from beginning to the end. Each of the main characters had a sorrow in their life to start of the film; losing all of his retirement money, lost a loved one, rejection of all the young women in his life, a need for a hip replacement, quitting his job and finally, the search for the escape of being used one too many times. Whatever their reason is, they all end up in India.

As the film progresses, we see each character make a change in their lives. The hotel's owner Sonny Kapoor, Dev Patel, says to the travelers, "Everything will be alright in the end. If you are not alright, then it is not the end." In his previous film Slumdog Millionaire, Dev Patel was mediocre.

However, from then on, he has grown to not only the hilarious Sonny but also to show us how he is able to play a multifaceted character with a sensitive side. When Sonny said it in the film, he was just simply trying to keep the guests at the hotel, for it is quite apparent that they were all having second thoughts about their decision to stay there. Each of the main actors and actresses offered tremendous performances throughout the film, playing their roles authentically.

This film is not a comedy, although it offers a few laughs. It is not a drama, although it has a few dramatic moments. Romance? Family oriented? Yes, The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel is all of those but it is not just one genre of film. What this film truly has is a coming of age tale. Just like having your first job, first apartment, and first child, The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel is based on starting a new life at any age and how to cope with the changes, especially those changes retirement brings. The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel is all about that. Retirees as well as parents who have recently sent off their children to college will appreciate the visual wonders and emotional impact found in this film.

"In India, we have a saying -

Everything will be all right in the end.
So if it is not all right, it is not yet the end."

-- Sonny Kapoor

The Merrimack Valley inspires a new collection of short stories

By JOANNE CODI

Charles Dickens, Edgar Allan Poe, Lucy Larcom and Jack Kerouac are just a few of the famous authors inspired by the Merrimack and the valley named after the mighty river. Now a new generation of local authors is making their own voices heard in a compilation called River Muse: Tales of Lowell & the Merrimack Valley published by Nashua based Sons of Liberty Publishing (www.sonsof-libertypublishing.com). Featuring over thirty-five short stories along with few poems, the stories range from mystery, horror, romance, and true tales of the area, the book also includes three never before published pieces from Kerouac.

The brainchild of publisher (and author of the Ronan Marino Mystery series of hardboiled detective novels set in Lowell) Lloyd L. Corricelli, it is a collaboration that has been under construction for the past two years.

"As Sons of Liberty Publishing continued to release new books, I met many authors at various events in the area and it occurred to me that there should be some sort of project where we could expose people to this growing and exciting local literary movement," said Corricelli.

The idea for River Muse was born but he knew he couldn't execute such a complex project on his own. Calling on David Daniel, renowned local author (Reunion, White Rabbit and winner of the Private Eye Writers of America, Best Private Eye Novel in 1994), they began to approach authors about contributing pieces for the book and took on the roles of co-editors.

One of the first to join the endeavor was Paul Marion, an administrator at UMass-Lowell and accomplished author in his own right. Marion contributed a piece called "Cut from American Cloth" recounting the history of Lowell from his own perspective.

"River Muse makes a powerful statement about the vitality of writing in the Lowell area and Merrimack Valley region," said Marion. "The particulars of the selections transcend what is local and point toward universal human truths."

With the support of Daniel and Marion, the project began to take shape as they were able to recruit established authors such as Andre Dubus III (The House of Sand and Fog, Townies) and Jay Atkinson (Paradise Road: Jack Kerouac's Lost Highway and My Search for America, Memoirs of a Rugby-Playing Man: Guts, Glory, and Blood in the World's Greatest Game) to contribute pieces as well as a piece from Dubus' father. The real coup however came from a discussion Daniel had with John Samps, the executor of the Kerouac estate.

"I mentioned to John that we were doing this compilation and that it wouldn't be complete without a piece from the man who inspired many of the authors who had contributed to the book," said Daniel. "The next day I received a file with dozens of Kerouac pieces that the general public had never seen before with a note saying to pick what we liked for the book."

In addition, Samps provided some works for inclusion in River Muse from his older brother Sebastian, who had been Kerouac's boyhood friend that died in the Battle of Anzio during World War II.

"Sebastian was just starting to become a poet when he was killed," explained Samps. "He was writing in notebooks and letters home, and published some things in Stars & Stripes, but he never got the chance to grow into the poet he showed promise of becoming." This will be the first time that Sebastian Samps' work will be available in a mainstream publication.

With Kerouac included, the editors decided it was important to put the area's literary history into perspective including some of the authors who predated Kerouac that had written about the area. This led to the inclusions of a section from Dickens' American Notes for General Circulation where the famed English author talks about his visit to the then new Lowell Mills and others such as Poe, who made many trips to Lowell and is believed to have written Lines on Ale during a stay at The Worthen.

As River Muse neared completion, Corricelli and Daniel began to look for someone of prominence to write the forward for the book to pull it all together. Enter current UMass-Lowell chancellor and former congressman Martin T. Meehan who was more than happy to contribute to what he calls "a new literary renaissance in the Merrimack Valley." In his forward, Meehan aptly described "bricks and books" as the two things that symbolize life in the Merrimack Valley.

While much of the interest by the public will undoubtedly be on the previously unpublished Kerouac, the editors hope that readers will take the time to explore other sections of the book and learn more about the authors who contributed. "There are a number of writers in River Muse who have never before been published and this project gives them a vehicle to get their work out there and hopefully garner interest in future releases," Daniel explained. "There are also many authors in the book who have been published, like Pierre Comtois, Stephen O'Connor and Judith Dickerman-Nelson who hope see a bump in book sales as readers are exposed to their incredible talents."

While the editors did their best to make the book all inclusive, including a wide range of pieces from both male and female voices as well as representatives of some of the ethnic minorities who have contributed to the Merrimack Valley region, they recognize that there are many fine writers not represented in River Muse.

"We strived to include as many different groups that comprised the rich tapestry of the area, but know that we've barely scratched the surface," said Corricelli.

Could this lead then to a second volume? Both editors agree that it was possible if the book sells well. "I'd love to see River Muse 2 that includes the authors and ethnic groups we didn't have an opportunity to include this time around," said Daniel.

For now however, their efforts are focused on promoting the book and planning a gala release event at the UMass-Lowell Inn & Conference Center in downtown Lowell on June 8th. Starting at seven in the evening, this free event will be the public's first opportunity to buy the book, meet many of the authors and hear some of them read from their works. More important to the editors is that all profits from sales of the book will go to veterans' charities working through the UMass-Lowell Office of Veterans Services. This was something Corricelli, himself a disabled vet, stated up front when he and Daniel began working on the book.

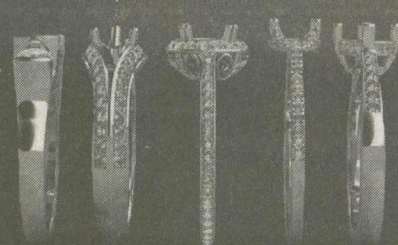

"We actually dedicated the book to all who served in the name of freedom. People like Sebastian Samps gave their lives to ensure that the authors in the book had the freedom to express their ideas. They made this all possible and we want to be able give back in some small way."

River Muse: Tales of Lowell & the Merrimack Valley is available on Amazon.com and for special order at any bookstore.

Harvard College announces matriculation of Tewksbury residents

CAMBRIDGE - Harvard College announced last week that both Mark Daley and Charles Sutherland of Tewksbury will matriculate and join the Class of 2016 in the fall. Daley and Sutherland will join 1,600 students selected from a pool of more than 34,000 applicants from all 50 states and from countries around the world.

"The Class of 2016 boasts an astonishing diversity of accomplishments, abilities, interests, and backgrounds," said Harvard College Dean Evelyn M. Hammonds. "Thanks to the College's need-blind financial aid policy, we can bring the world's most gifted students to Harvard, regardless of their family's financial resources. I look forward to greting freshmen when they arrive on campus this August."

Harvard admissions officials say that this year's applicant pool of 34,302 students was re-markable for its excellence and diversity. More than 14,000 scored 700 or above on the SAT critical reading test; 17,000 scored 700 or above on the SAT math test; 15,000 scored 700 or higher on the SAT writing test; and 3,800 were ranked first in their high school classes. Almost 22 percent of admitted students reside in the mid-Atlantic states, 21 percent in the Western and Mountain states, 19 percent in the South, 17 percent in New England, 10 percent in the Midwest, and 11 percent in the U.S. territories and abroad. The matriculating class represents a wide range of ethnicities and backgrounds - 22.6 percent are Asian-American; 9.4 percent African-American; 9.3 percent Latino; 1.7 percent Native American and Native Hawaiian - and nearly equal proportions of men and women: 52.5 percent and 47.5 percent, respectively.

The excellence and diversity of the Class of 2016 is possible thanks to a record $172 million financial aid budget for academic year 2012-2013. More than 70 percent of students will receive some sort of financial aid. More than 60 percent will receive need-based grant aid and will pay, on average, $12,000 toward the cost of tuition, room, board, and fees, with an average grant of more than $41,000.

Under the College's "zero contribution" policy, families with normal assets making $65,000 or less annually will pay nothing for their student's tuition, room, board, and fees. Families with incomes up to $150,000 will pay from zero to 10 percent of their income, depending on individual family circumstances. Families with incomes above $150,000 may still qualify for need-based assistance.

"Harvard is reaching out more than ever before for students with remarkable personal qualities and character who can play leadership roles in addressing the many urgent challenges facing us," said William R. Fitzsimmons, dean of admissions and financial aid. "The benefits of enabling students from all backgrounds to make the most of their talents through higher education will be felt on campus and in the world for generations to come."

OBITUARIES

Angelo A. "Rico" Russo

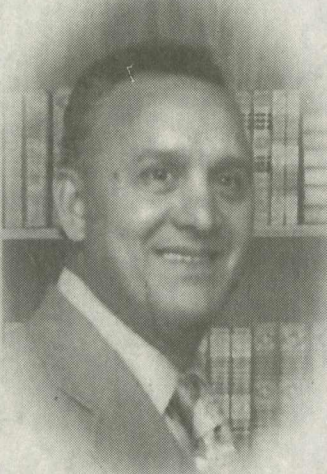

WWII, Korean War Veteran; worked for Army Corps of Engineers; Wildcat fan

WILMINGTON - Angelo A. "Rico" Russo, age 85, of Wilmington, died peacefully at home surrounded by his loving family on May 31, 2012.

Rico was born on July 3, 1926, in Burlington, MA, he was cherished son of the late Angelo and Angelena (Aramando) Russo. Rico grew up on the family farm in Burlington, one of nine siblings, Rico was part of a large, loving, and tight knit family. Rico was educated in the Burlington School System and while in high school he made an unsuccessful attempt in 1942 to enlist in the U. S. Navy with his older brothers Freddie, Tony, Charlie, and Rudy, due to the fact that he was only 16 years old. Rico later enlisted in the Navy on September 25, 1943 and began a long and impressive career with the military, spanning two wars, and many years of honorable service to our country.

Rico was initially sent to Norfolk, VA and attended Armed Guard School with the intention of being a gunner on Navy ships. What should have been a 26 week course was crammed into a mere six weeks for a very dangerous job and Rico took on his first assignment as a gunner aboard the S.S. Theodore Sedgwick. Rico's first deployment took him through the Middle East, England, Northern France, and back to the United States. He was thrust into the heat of battle right away trying desperately to get supplies to the troops and saw much tragedy as a young sailor. His next assignment was aboard the S.S. Rosemont bound for the Mediterranean, they made their way through various ports in Italy and were confronted in battle by a few German U-boats and German air strikes. Rico's experiences during WWII did not stop there, he also served on yet another armed naval cargo ship, the S.S. Thomas Sim Lee and in Murmansk, Russia. Rico was discharged on April 17, 1946 and joined the Army National Guard later that year where he served until 1947.

Rico wanted to serve the country in each and every branch so that same year he joined the U.S. Air Force on October 28, 1947, he received training at Ft. Slocum Air Force Base in New Rochelle, New York. Following his training, Rico was assigned to Westover Air Force Base and then on to Travis Air Force Base in California. He served all over the Asiatic Pacific Theatre and was assigned to Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii where he attended Flight Steward School. Rico was part of the Military Air Transport Service, Pacific Air Command Division. Rico saw a lot of action during the Korean War and was there for the beginning of the Cold War where he was stationed in Germany and took part in the Berlin Air Lift. Rico received many commendations and medals for his bravery and time served during World War II and the Korean War, he was honorably discharged November 6, 1951 and returned to his home and family. When Rico returned from the Korean War, he immediately enlisted in the Woburn National Guard.

Rico returned to Burlington and on January 15, 1955, he married the "love of his life" Bernice M. Russo. Rico and Bernice moved to Wilmington over 40 years ago where they raised their children. Rico loved being a father, he was very active and involved, he coached Wilmington Pop Warner for many years and was Past President of the club. Rico loved kids, he gave countless hours coaching and helping not only his children but the children of Wilmington, he was a role model and mentor to many, and in return he earned the love and respect of many children as well as their parents. When not coaching, Rico could be found at "the fence" of Wilmington High School's Football Field taking in a practice or watching football game always encouraging and supporting the players. He was a true "Wildcat fan".

Rico was a hard worker, always providing a stable and loving home for his family, prior to retiring he worked for the government for many years as a Shop Steward and Tester with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers first in Waltham and then at Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford. Rico was a reliable and dedicated employee and a wonderful worker.

In his spare time, Rico enjoyed traveling to Florida for the winter with Bernice, they made friends wherever they went but he always looked forward to returning to Wilmington to be with his children and grandchildren. Rico also loved gardening, vegetables or plants it didn't matter, he loved digging in the dirt. He was a great cook, famous for his "red gravy" and he liked watching the New England Patriots, science fiction television, and he dabbled in metaphysics where he truly believed in PMA "Positive Mental Attitude" and shared that belief with everyone he met. Rico also had a competitive side, he and his brother Rudy relished in beating their wives Bernice and Gracie in a good game of pinochle on occasion, a very rare occasion.

Rico was also a talented square dancer, he and Bernice joined "Skirts and Flirts" in Wilmington many years ago, they made dear friends with thirteen other couples, always making it a point to keep in touch even to this day.

Most important to Rico was his family, he loved his wife unconditionally, enjoyed watching his children grow, and when the grandchildren came along he became the "Greatest Papa", they were his pride and joy.

Rico was a man who was honest, kind, generous, he was very down to earth and humble as well, he had an infectious smile and everyone around him was drawn to him. Rico had a way of making adults as well as children feel good about themselves and was always willing to lend a hand or an ear when needed. Rico was a remarkable man and a proud Veteran, he left a wonderful legacy and will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Rico was the beloved husband of 57 years to Bernice M. Russo, devoted father of Debra Russo, Phillip Russo & his wife Meg, and Michael Russo & his wife Sandi all of Wilmington, and Joseph Russo & his wife Lisa of Billerica, loving "Papa" of Jamie DiGeorge & her husband Sean, Joseph, Angela, Nicholas, P.J., Natalie, Jacob, Sydnee, Jordan, Samantha, and Michael Russo. Dear brother of Chris Russo of Sarasota, FL, Catherine Riga of Pepperell, Anna Lisacki of Woburn, and the late Mary Wingert, Anthony, Frederick, Charles, and Rudolph "Rudy" Russo. Rico is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Family and friends gathered in the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, for Visiting Hours on Monday, June 4th from 4-8 p.m. followed by a Prayer Service and Military Honors at 8:00 p.m. In lieu of flowers donations in Angelo's name may be made to The Home for Little Wanderers, Development Dept., 271 Huntington Ave., 2nd Floor, Boston, MA 02115.

Joseph John Sottile

WWII Veteran; Regional Sales Manager for Hasselblad

PEABODY - Joseph John Sottile, 91, of Peabody, MA formerly of Wilmington and Chelmsford, passed away suddenly on Sunday, May 27, 2012, just one month shy of his 92nd birthday. Born in 1920 to parents, Mary (Labadini) and William Sottile; he was the brother of the late William, Francis and his twin sister Marie. Husband of Jeane (Cunningham) Sottile.

Joe, as he was known to family and friends, was born and raised in East Cambridge and was a graduate of Cambridge Ridge & Latin High School and Burdett College. During the Depression he worked in the Civilian Conservation Corp, also known as the CCC. After the war Joe returned home to Wilmington. There he began a photographic career that spanned more than 50 years, primarily as a Regional Sales Manager for Victor Hasselblad Inc. During that time he earned many top sales awards.

Joseph met his wife of 57 years when she tried to fix him up with her best friend. Besides traveling with his wife & family on many cruises, his work was his hobby and playing poker was a close second. Like the true New Englander that he was,

Joe followed every professional Boston sports team religiously. Jeane and Joe raised their children in Wilmington and Chelmsford, MA before retiring to Naples, Florida; a life dream come true for him.

Joseph is survived by his wife Jeane, daughter, Marie Zorn and her husband Christopher of Medfield, son, Martin Sottile Hassman and his husband George Hassman MD of La Canada Flintridge, CA, and four grandchildren, Eric, Keith, Ashley and Rubin.

You want to get caught!

Helmet rewards program

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Police Department is on the look out. They are looking to reward young people "caught" wearing their bike helmets with gift certificates. These certificates can be redeemed at the local McDonald's, Burger King, or Friendly's. The Lowell Spinners also donated free tickets for upcoming games. The goal of the Program is to increase helmet use in Town.

It's actually the law that young people 16 and under wear a bike helmet. Massachusetts law requires children 16 years of age or younger who operate a bicycle, or who ride as a passenger on a bicycle, on a public way or bike path to wear a properly fitted and fastened helmet.

A bicycle helmet can reduce risk of serious head and brain injury by as much as 90 percent. Unfortunately, 89 percent of people killed in bicycle crashes with motor vehicles were not wearing a helmet. For more information on the bicycle helmet law and bicycle safety tips, go to www.mass.gov/highwaysafety.

If you get caught wearing your helmet, you'll get a reward. If you don't have a helmet on, the Police Department will provide you with one.

The Police Department would like to thank the local business for supporting their efforts to keep the children of Tewksbury safe. This is only one of many events to come in which the Tewksbury Police Department will be working with local businesses to help make Tewksbury a safer community. In the upcoming months, the Police Department will be hosting a Bike Rodeo. Children will be able to have their bikes inspected for safety issues, get their helmets fitted correctly, and then ride through an obstacle course designed to teach them bike riding safety. Each child that participates will be entered into a drawing for a chance to win donated prizes. The Tewksbury Police Department will also be hosting a National Night Out Against Crime event on August 7.

For more information about upcoming events or to get involved, please contact Safety Officer Jennie Welch (978)851-7373, extension 230.

teams making for a very successful and smooth response to the entire situation," Bradbury said. He further commended the Analog team for having a proper plan and protocol in place for emergencies and following it.

Bradbury said although six Analog employees were transported to a hospital, it was just a precaution and none of the employees were actually admitted.

"In the area that this substance [ozone] is used in is monitored," according to Bradbury. "The alarms are set to sound when the level [of detected ozone] is way below anything that would be harmful to anyone."

According to the

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) website, it doesn't take much ozone exposure to cause health problems.

"Relatively low amounts [of ozone] can cause chest pain, coughing, shortness of breath, and, throat irritation. Ozone may also worsen chronic respiratory diseases such as asthma and compromise the ability of the body to fight respiratory infections."

Health standards regarding exposure to ozone are set by several government agencies:

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires ozone output of indoor medical devices to be no more than 0.05 parts per million (ppm).

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) requires that workers not be exposed to an average concentration of more than 0.10 ppm for 8 hours.

The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) recommends an upper limit of 0.10 ppm, not to be exceeded at any time.

EPA's National Ambient Air Quality Standard for ozone is a maximum 8-hour average outdoor concentration of 0.08 ppm. For more information on health effects and standards of ozone exposure visit www.epa.gov.

Bortone Teacher of the Year

as a teacher for 4 years, I enjoy my time here once again in a different way. I love Spirit Week, dances, proms, and especially all of the senior events that I have been part of this year," said Bortone. "Now that my class is graduating, I think of really little, simple things as my best memories. My favorite memories are all of the smiles and laughs I have spent with this class in their past 4 years here. Even in the most difficult times of my life, the class of 2012 has made me smile and forget my worries for the day. For that, I will always love them."

Bortone first knew she wanted to become a high school English teacher in seventh grade.

"I decided to be a teacher because I wanted a job that would give me the opportunity to work with people and to impact people's lives in a positive way," said Bortone, who never wavered from that seventh grade plan. "The best part of being a teacher is all the time I get to spend getting to know my students. It makes my day so fun and my job is far from boring because of all of my students."

The last three Teachers of the Year have all been WHS graduates, a fact Bortone attributes to the enthusiasm engendered by the school.

"We love our school and we are so proud to come back and give back to the school and community that helped us to achieve our goals. I think this inspires us to be even better teachers!" said Bortone.

For the 2011-2012 school year Bortone taught both freshman and senior English. She Graduated from Boston College in 2008 with a BA in Secondary Education and English and completed her student teaching in Boston, Waltham, and Wilmington. Bortone will earn her M.Ed. in English from Framingham State University after the 2012 fall semester.

Joint Committee meeting over WHS project

Selectmen and Schools will hear status report June 11

WILMINGTON - The Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Michael Newhouse, and the Chairman of the School Committee, Peggy Kane, announced Tuesday a joint meeting of their committees set for Monday, June 11, to hear a status report on the High School project.

In the statement to the press, the Chairs stated that the meeting will update the public on the High School Building Committee's design development and overall progress of the project, as well as discuss the two pending appeals before the DEP. The town's architectural and project management teams will join town attorney Dan Deutsch along with representatives of Nitsch Engineering. The town will receive an explanation of the impact pending appeals will have on the budget, the construction schedule, and the completion date of the new school.

"This is an important opportunity for concerned residents to get a first hand explanation of the appeals process, and what is at stake for the town," said Newhouse. "We encourage interested residents to attend the meeting."

Kane agrees that a meeting at this time will be "informative and productive."

"This meeting will provide an opportunity for us to update the residents about the progress we have made, and to share some of the design details that have been incorporated into the project over the past few months," said Kane in the statement.

The meeting begins at 7:45 p.m. on Monday, June 11, in the Town Hall Auditorium.

Oberg drafted by Rockies

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

And now pitching for the Rockies, number 31, Scott Oberg.

In a shortwhile, the Tewksbury native may be hearing those words after he was drafted as the 10th selection of the 15th round by the Colorado Rockies on Tuesday afternoon during Major League Baseball's Draft held over a three-day span.

The junior right handed pitcher, who is coming off his third terrific season as a member of the UConn Huskies, said on Tuesday night that there's a very good chance he will sign a professional contract with the Rockies, perhaps by the end of this week, and once that happens he will be assigned to the minor leagues, most likely Single-A ball.

Over the past 25 years only one other Tewksbury resident has been drafted, and that was Chris Mader, who had a four-year minor league career with the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians organizations from 1992 to 1995. Several other former TMHS Baseball players have pitched before professional scouts, but for Oberg, easily the greatest pitcher to come out of TMHS, this is certainly a dream come true.

"This is something you dream about your entire life and it's one of the happiest days of my entire life," he said. "I've had such great support from my family and to celebrate with them is something I'll always remember."

On Monday night, the MLB Channel broadcasted live the first round of the draft, and then it concluded with rounds two through 15 on Tuesday. Oberg though he had a real good chance of being drafted after talking to scouts from both the Rockies and the St. Louis Cardinals. He knew he wasn't a first round pick, but Tuesday he became a little ancy.

"I was watching the draft on my computer since noon, and I got a call from the Rockies scout who said maybe I would be drafted between the seventh and tenth rounds," he said. "Then after the tenth round, I got another call saying they were still hoping to pick me up. So then it was the 15th round and I was watching it through the live stream video on my computer with my mother (Teresa) and brother (Jeff), and I heard my name and it's something I'll never forget."

Oberg has been a Tewksbury resident his entire life. He played in the Tewksbury Youth Baseball League, pitched for the all-star teams and went on to have a dynamite high school career. In his four years at TMHS, he finished with a 14-3 record and a 1.11 ERA. During that time, he was selected as the Merrimack Valley Conference MVP twice, as well as being selected as the Lowell Sun Player of the Year, a Boston Globe and Boston Herald All-Scholastic two times each as well. He did that under the guidance of long time head coach Ron Drouin, who was ecstatic with the news.

Lynn Classical advances after 4-2 win

Baseball team falls in first round

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Well before the season started, the Wilmington High School Baseball team's outlook for the 2012 season was kind of bleak, since after all, the team's best player Vinny Scifo -- who is off to UMass on a baseball scholarship -- was lost for the season due to an injury he suffered during the basketball season. So who really knew what to expect from this season?

But along the way, the Wildcats meshed together very well, saw some players really emerge, one or two bounce back from tough junior seasons, and all of a sudden the team finished with a Middlesex League Small School Championship competing in the state tournament after posting 11 regular season wins.

But last Thursday afternoon, the Wildcats, who certainly overachieved this season, were ousted in the first round of the Division 2 North Sectional Tournament. The No. 6 seed Lynn Classical came away with a 4-2 win over the No. 11 seed Wildcats in the first round action played at Fraser Field in Lynn.

Wilmington trailed 2-0 early in the game, came back to tie the game up at 2-2 before Classical scored single runs in the fourth and sixth innings to advance to the quarterfinal round to face the No. 3 seed Reading Rockets.

"We left a couple of guys on base and after we tied it up, we really struggled to get hits but more importantly timely hits," said head coach Aldo Caira. "It just seemed like when they needed the big hit they got it, and we didn't. Both teams had seven hits in the game, but they just got a few bigger ones."

Senior John Keough, who was undefeated this season with a 6-0 record, got the nod on the hill and he trailed 2-0 going to the bottom of the third inning. He gave up a single and a walk to the first two batters before the third batter of the inning came to the plate.

"John threw a pitch and he heard a pop in his shoulder," said Caira. "We went to the mound and he just couldn't throw the ball after that. It's the first time in my eleven years I've seen something like that happen."

That forced Caira to take Keough off the mound in favor of sophomore Brendan McDonough. He ended up coming in during the middle of an at-bat and walked that batter to load the bases with no one out.

"We were able to get out of that inning with a ground-ball to Cole (Pepper) at first who forced the runner from third out at home and then Brendan struck out the next two batters," said Caira. "That was huge for us at the time."

It was as Wilmington came back in the top of the fourth to tie the game up. After Phil Lentini and Cole Pepper singled, Dalton Rolli ripped a two-run double to tie the game up at 2-2. But then Lynn Classical was able to Caira. "Before Vinny's injury we thought we had a real strong team coming back, but then after he was out, we knew that we were going to need several kids to really step up and they did. These kids could have easily folded but they didn't and they kept fighting. We focused on beating the teams from the small school division, and we're happy we were able to do that and get the league title.

"In my eleven years here as head coach, this is the best team I've had in terms of team unity. The seniors really had a different attitude this year - instead of just getting to senior sign-out day and waiting for graduation, this year's seniors wanted to play it all the way through and prove something, and they certainly got what they wanted."

That being said nine seniors will be leaving the program after graduating this past week. The nine players include Rolli, Pepper, Keough, Lentini, Scifo, as well as Dan Pothier, Mike Ciampa, Steve Taylor and Kyle Skinner. That leaves a good nucleus of starting players returning.

"We'll have six starters coming back which is a pretty good nucleus," said Caira. "We'll have three juniors and one sophomore coming back as pitchers, who all had significant varsity experience and we'll be relying on them a lot next year. We'll be looking for a second baseman, a back-up catcher, a back-up corner infielder and a back-up outfielder so we'll have a few spots to fill but we'll have a good nucleus returning."

Pitchers Timmy Woods and McDonough will anchor the staff next year, while Caira said sophomore outfielder Mike Curtis will move to first base, while sophomore Tyler Stillings will serve as the team's catcher and juniors Jeff Favuzza and Colin Doherty will return as the left side of the infield at shortstop and third base.

"Jeff was one kid who really stepped up this year and I thought he had a tremendous season for us," said Caira. "He was very solid at shortstop."

Wilmington High senior Phil Lentini slides into home during a recently played regular season game against Tewksbury. Lentini and the rest of the Wildcats had their successful season come to an end on Thursday with a 4-2 loss to Lynn Classical in the first round of the state tournament. Jennings top sophomore at All-States

Eli Jennings was the lone representative from either the boys or girls track teams to participate at Tuesday's All-State Meet held at Fitchburg State College. The sophomore finished 9th in the discus throwing 139-11 feet and then was 14th in the shot put throwing 47-08.

"He did alright but it was n't his personal bests," said WHS Boys Track coach Mike Kinney. "He's just a sophomore so he has a very bright future ahead of him. He had some good throws. I also thought he dealt with the pressure pretty well considering he was throwing against all older kids."

Jennings was the top underclassmen to finish in the discus, as two other sophomores finished 19th and 21st and he was also the second best tenth grader in the shot put.

Jennings' teammate, Pat McGondel qualified for the All-State Meet in the pole vault but elected not to compete.

State Championship team receives their rings

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

TEWKSBURY -- Back in March, the Wilmington High Boys Hockey team made history on the ice of the TD Garden, thrilling the town, the alumni and the student body by winning the first state championship in the program's history with a 3-2 win over Franklin High School.

It was a magical post season run and a magical moment on the Garden ice in the championship game that nobody involved will ever forget.

Soon many of the players involved will graduate from Wilmington High and go their separate ways as they move on to college or begin their working careers. But last Wednesday night, for one last time the state champion Wildcats were all together, this time at the Tewksbury Country Club, at a banquet to honor their tremendous season.

There was not a seat to be found at the packed country club, as friends, families, boosters and fans jammed the facility to take the opportunity to honor the team that had brought them so much joy.

Throughout the evening players and guests were treated to a video featuring highlights of the remarkable season, and the night closed with the players and coaches receiving the championship rings they had worked so hard to earn.

"I thought they were a special group of guys," Wilmington coach Steve Scanlon told the crowd as he prepared to present the players with their rings. "They put themselves in position to get to the state title game and then they stood tall on the biggest stage. So I am really proud of you guys. I am really proud of you."

Prior to the evening's festivities as the players gathered with their teammates, several of them took a moment to reflect on the season and to anticipate what they were most looking forward to in the night ahead.

Sophomore goalie Drew Foley, who helped lead the Wildcats to the title with an amazing performance in net was looking forward to celebrating and reminiscing with teammates that he no longer gets to see every day.

"It's going to be a lot of fun because we haven't really seen each other a lot," Foley said. "Even though we are in school together, the high school is kind of big so we don't get to see each other like during the season so this will be fun get together with all these guys."

While Foley and his teammates have moved on for the moment from winning the title, whether it is with another sport or other commitments, he feels that he and his teammates will be able to look back on for the rest of their lives.

"We don't look back on it a lot now, but as we get older into our 20's and 30's I am sure it will be something we look back on," Foley said. "It is something we will remember forever."

Senior forward Joseph Russell was also very pleased to be able to catch up with his teammates, especially as he prepares to move on from Wilmington High and on to college.

"It's a great way to reconnect with these guys," Russell said "Because at other times during the year everybody is doing their different things, but during the hockey season, or during something like this we are like a family."

Russell experienced many thrills along with his teammates throughout the season, but the one that stands out most of course was that final game on the Garden ice when he and his teammates stood on the same ice as the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins and celebrated their title.

Russell has been back to the Garden to see the Bruins play since the Wildcats historic win, and he is now able to view the game from an entirely new perspective.

"It's insane being there now," Russell said. "The perspective is so different from being in the stands to being on the ice and to go there now and be able to realize that we won the state championship there is really incredible."

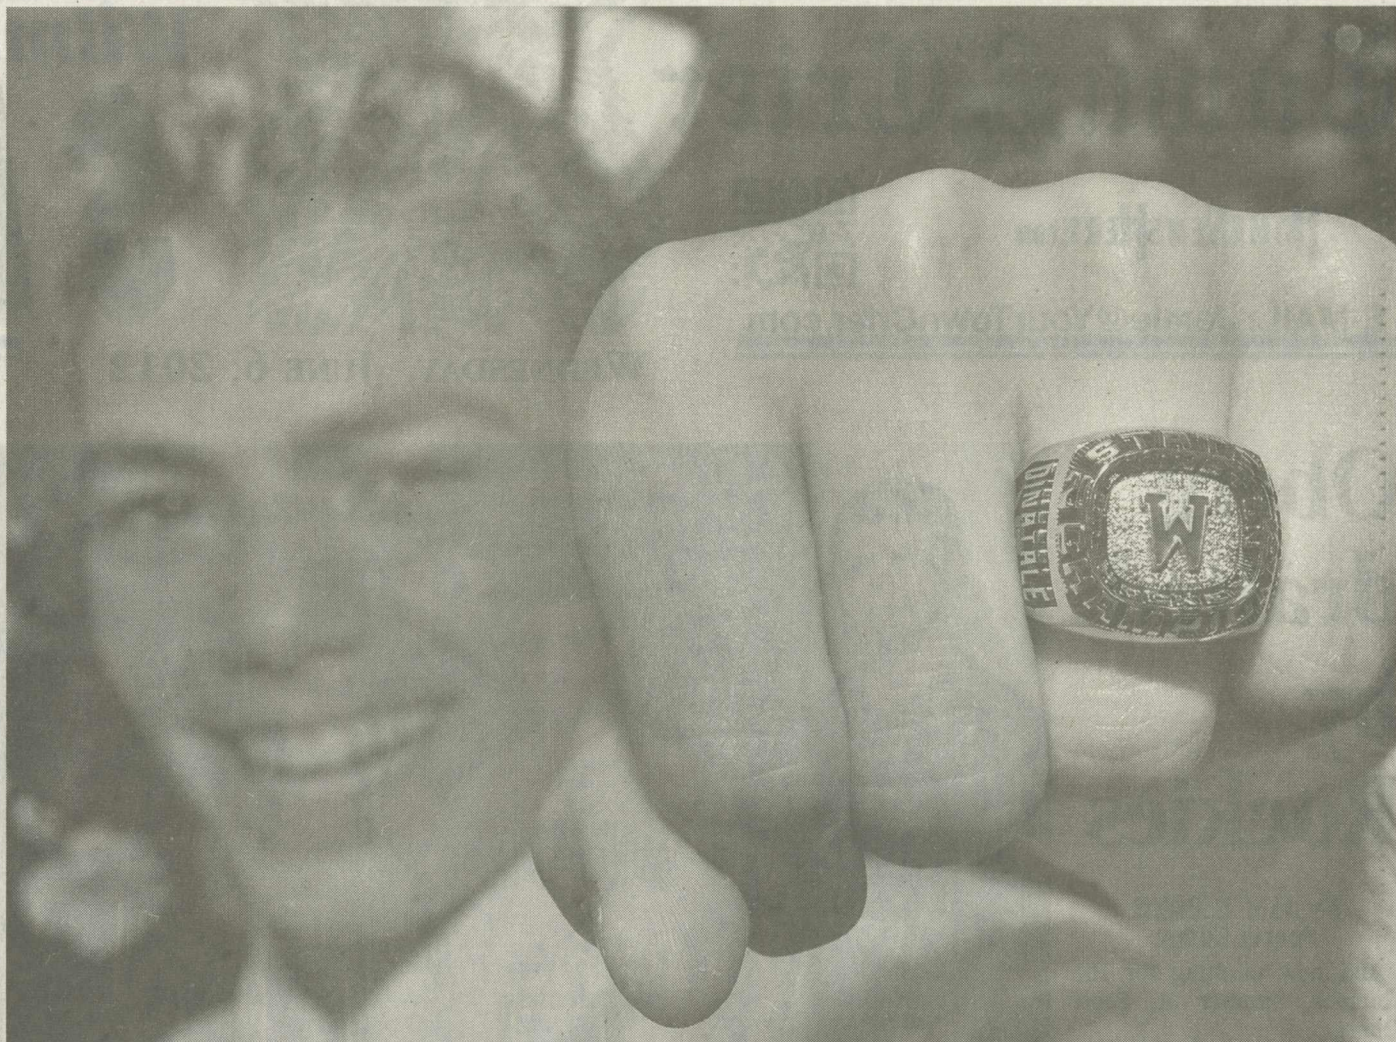

For a young on his way to college, Russell spoke with apparent wisdom beyond his years as he looked ahead to what this championship will mean for he and his teammates in the years to come.

"It's great and it's something we can take with us the rest of our lives," Russell said. "We will always be able to say if we can accomplish this we can accomplish anything and the guys will set their sights higher in life for things they want to accomplish."

Senior defenseman John Mulrenan spoke for many of his teammates when he commented on how much the team believed in itself, even when others may have doubted them.

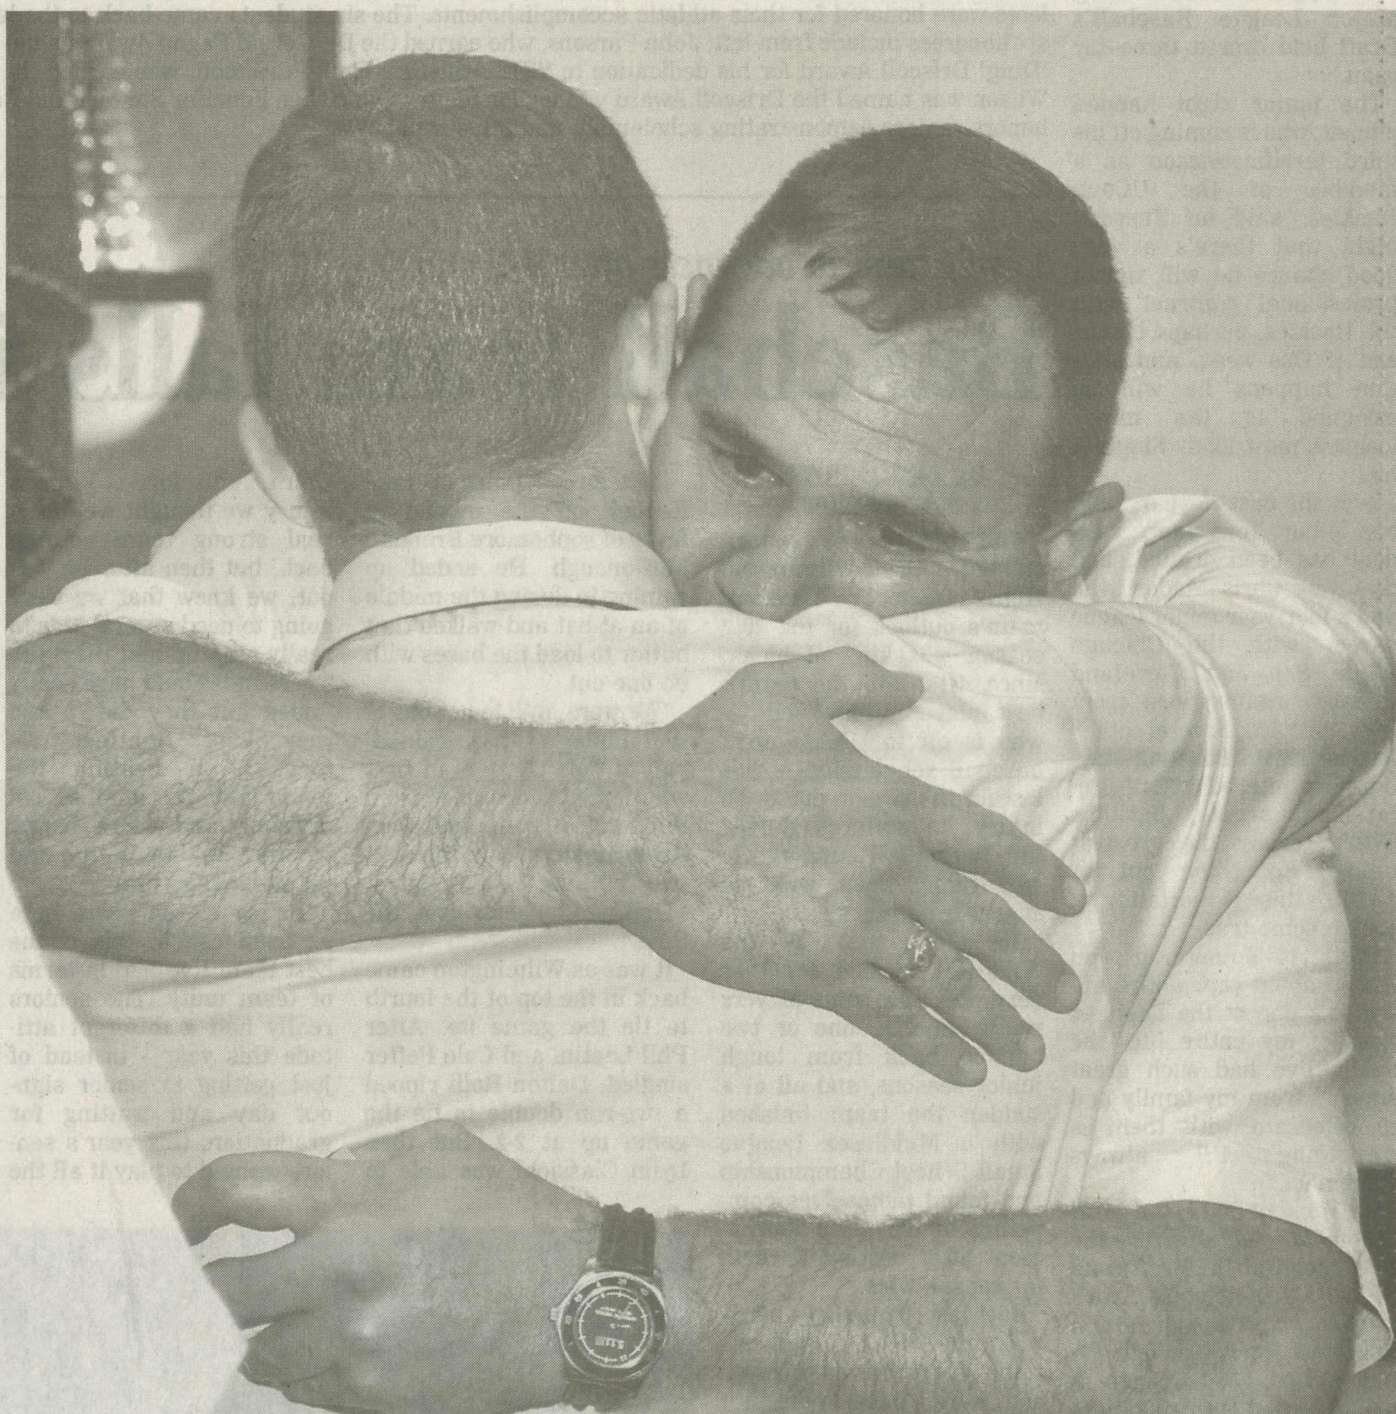

"It was just awesome," Mulrenan said. "Nobody knew how far we would go, but as we kept going through the playoffs once we kept winning and taking it one game at a time everything got a lot easier and we really believed we could go far."

When Scanlon took to the podium after dinner to address the guests in attendance the first thing he did was thank some of the most important people in the audience.

Last Wednesday night, the Division 2 State Champion Wilmington High School Boys Hockey team were honored with their year end banquet held at the Tewksbury Country Club, which included receiving their championship rings. Above Dylan DiNatale shows off his ring, and below, captain Dalton Rolli hugs former longtime assistant coach Chip Bruce, after Rolli and the rest of the team presented Bruce with his own ring. Perhaps, that awesome gesture by the team, and this picture will help Wilmington School Administrators realize how much Bruce means to the kids here in town.

"I want to thank the parents; they are our most loyal fans," Scanlon said. "They come out in any kind of weather and are always there for us."

Scanlon then reflected back on some of the highlights of the Wildcats championship season, noting how his team, playing their first season in the Middlesex League, seemed to get better as the season went on before finally peaking at tournament time.

"We didn't know what to expect at the start of the year because we did not know a lot about the teams over there," Scanlon said. "We had a little bit of a struggle at the start of the year. We didn't have a full roster, but the kids kept working."

"We struggled a little bit in December, I think we were 2-2-1, but I thought we played one of our best games all season in a 3-2 loss to Reading (on December 21). We played very well against a good team. We were a little inconsistent in January, and in our February games we started catching fire a little bit and we had some tight games down the stretch with Burlington and Wakefield and a real good game against Tewksbury."

Once tournament time came, Scanlon and the Wildcats were familiar with their opponents, but that was of little comfort to them as they were well aware of how strong Cape Ann League opponents like Newburyport, Lynnfield and North Andover could be.

"We saw all those Cape Ann League teams in front of us in the tournament and we were not really looking forward to that," Scanlon said. "But, the boys played by the warrior's code the entire tournament and got themselves to the state title game."

After presenting all of the players and coaches with their championship rings, Scanlon addressed his team for one last time, honoring them for not only winning the state championship, but for the manner in which they went about it.

"Every year dozens of kids across the state lace up their skates and put on their jerseys and go out there and try to win the state championship," Scanlon said. "It is an exciting three weeks in March and you never know what is going to happen. It is an exhausting three weeks for everyone involved, fans and players. Our kids did a great job. What helped us the most is that we played in the present. We did not think about what could have been or should have been. We took it moment by moment and made their own path out there and did a great job for us."

"We just want to tell you one last time how proud we are of you. I am proud to be your coach and I brag about you all the time. You did something that no one else has been able to do, so congratulations. Enjoy it."

Along with the ring ceremony there were several other highlights throughout evening, including the presentation of several team awards.

The award winners were as follows: Jack Smith Memorial Award - Dan Creeden; Unsung Hero Award - Brian Pickett; Dick Scanlon Memorial Award - Trevor Foley; Coaches Award - Dalton Rolli; Most Valuable Player - Cam Owens and Drew Foley.

Scanlon also announced that Owens, who is heading into his senior year, will serve as the Wildcats captain next season.

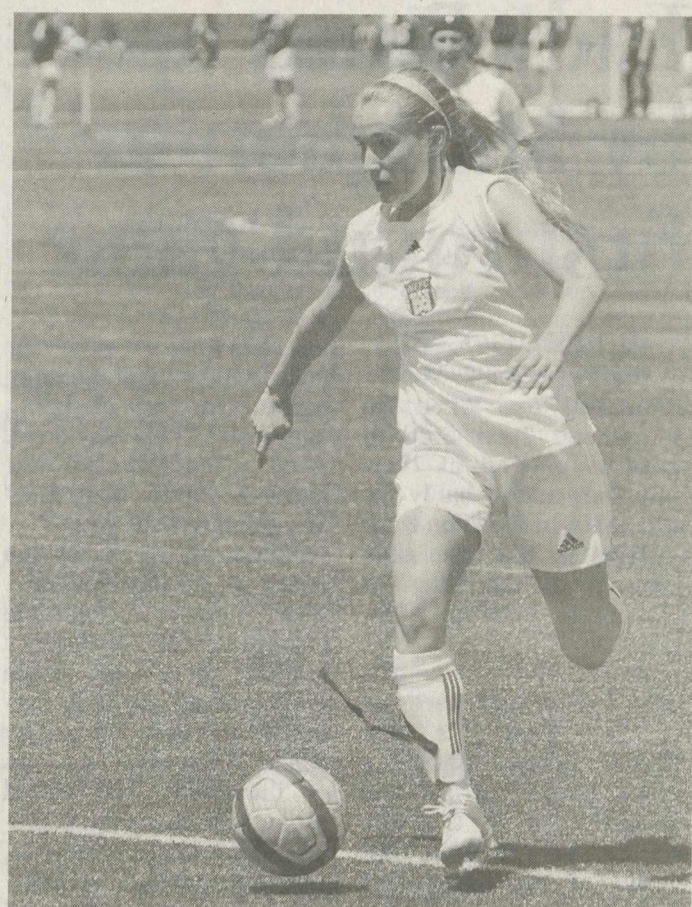

A handful of WHS Hockey players not only are modeling their hands, but showing off their new state championship rings, all the while surrounding the state championship trophy during last Wednesday's Hockey banquet.

Lady Rams upset by Matignon in first round game

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA - When the Shawsheen Tech Softball team is playing at their best, they are probably the best team in Division 3, or at least in the discussion along with the likes of perennial champ St. Mary's.

Unfortunately for the Lady Rams, they were not at their best this past Sunday against Matignon, when several errors and misplays led to a disappointing 6-2 loss in the first round of the Division 3 North Sectional Tournament, ending Shawsheen's season much earlier than they had hoped.

The No.1 seed Lady Rams finished their season at 16-5 overall, while Matignon, who advanced all the way to the sectional semi-finals last season, improved to 14-8 and went on to defeat Lynnfield in the quarterfinals on Tuesday afternoon.

Shawsheen was doomed by three first inning runs that scored after they failed to make a play on an infield pop up, and a single run that scored in the fourth inning after another error and another missed pop up.

It was a difficult way for the season to end for Shawsheen coach Maureen Buckley and her team. While acknowledging that Matignon is an outstanding team that may very well make a deep tournament run, she also knows that her team contributed heavily to their own demise.

"We knew coming in they were going to be a good team and we would have to play good solid defense and we just did not do that today," Buckley said. "Matignon could do very well in this tournament. They hit the ball well, they play good defense and they pitch well. If you are going to lose, you want it to be to a good team, but I would just like for us to have played a little better."

Matignon jumped on top early, taking advantage of a Shawsheen miscue. A triple by Warriors captain Sarah Gauthier was sandwiched around a pair of outs and it looked like Shawsheen pitcher Emily Hamilton of Tewksbury had gotten the third out of the inning when Matignon's Laura Doneski popped up along the first base line.

But some miscommunication in the infield let the ball drop harmlessly in foul ground and the cleanup hitter made the most of her second chance ripping a single to center to score Gauthier with the first run of the game.

A double by Eileen Bergen put runners on second and third and the next better ripped another double that scored both runs for a 3-0 Matignon lead.

Matignon would make it 4-0 in the third when more miscommunication on another pop up, this time to the outfield, followed by an error allowed a run to score with two outs.

"The three runs they got in the first inning never should have happened," Buckley said. "The pop-ups that fell, somebody needs to be aggressive and go after it. We worked on that quite a bit in practice the other day with outfielders sliding and diving and going after those balls. When they go up that high they have to go and catch it."

Buckley felt that her team may have been a little tentative with the pressure of post season play looming over them.

"Sometimes the pressure just gets to be too much for folks, and you end up being careful instead of being aggressive," Buckley said. "And when you do that against a good team they are going to beat you."

Shawsheen did get on the board in the fourth inning, when junior Stephanie Champoux of Tewksbury reached on a bunt single with one out, went to second on a single to center by senior Francesca Pesantes of Tewksbury, and scored on an RBI single by another Tewksbury resident, sophomore Emily Knoops.

The Shawsheen rally died there, however, as the next two batters were retired. Both batters had chances before making outs, ripping line drives down the third base line that were just foul. The Lady Rams hit several hard hot balls just foul on the day, and also came close to scoring in the fifth inning, when they had a runner thrown out at third.

"Sometimes the softball gods are not kind. We had a couple of balls that were just foul and some other missed opportunities," Buckley said. "When things are going well for you, they go well for you, and when they are not going well, everything seems to go down that path."

Matignon scored single runs in the sixth and seventh innings to extend their lead to 6-1, but Buckley was very pleased with Hamilton's pitching performances. After allowing eight hits in the first three innings, including the missed pop ups, she allowed only three hits the rest of the game and did her best to give her team a chance to come back.

"Emily did a nice job on the mound. It's not her fault at all," Buckley said. "We didn't play good solid defense behind her. She certainly put us in a position to win."

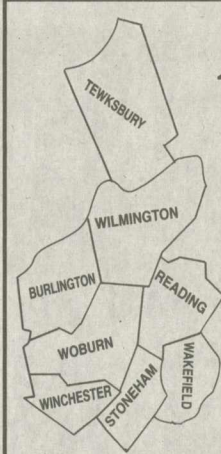

Shawsheen certainly had their chances to get back in the game, seeing their rallies in the fifth and sixth innings fall short, and then putting on one final charge in the seventh inning.

Freshman Mariah Wentzell got things started with an infield single and came around to score on a single by senior Jen Curtis. The Lady Rams actually had runners on second and third with no outs, and looked like they just may stage a miracle rally, but Matignon pitcher Lauren Doneski settled down and retired the next three hitters to end the game and Shawsheen's season.

"I thought we hit the ball pretty well," Buckley said. "(Doneski) throws the ball very well. We had chances. We had runners on, but we just could not get that one big hit. We had the opportunities but could not get the big hit when we needed it. But it is what it is."

And while the season ended in disappointment on this day, Buckley and the Lady Rams will certainly be able to look back with pride on a tremendous season that saw them win their sixth consecutive CAC championship and advance to the State Vocational championship game.

"I just told the girls this doesn't diminish the season they had by any stretch of the imagination," Buckley said. "It would have been nice to carry the seniors farther into the tournament and keep them hanging around a lot longer, but we were 16-4 in the regular season and we got to the voke finals. Overall it was a great season for Shawsheen softball."

Rams Baseball blanked by Saugus

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

One of the most successful seasons in the history of the Shawsheen Tech Baseball program came to a difficult end on Sunday afternoon in Billerica when No. 2 seed Rams dropped an 11-0 decision to No. 18 seed Saugus in the first round of the Division 3 North Tournament.

The Rams, champions of the CAC Large Division, were held to just one hit in the game, a single by senior Joe Vitale of Tewksbury, as they finished their tremendous season with a record of 15-4.

Saugus, meanwhile improved their deceptively poor record to 9-13 and advanced to the sectional quarterfinals where they will take on Arlington Catholic.

Last season Saugus, who plays an almost entirely Division 2 schedule in the Northeast Conference during the season, entered last year's tournament with a 5-15 record and advanced all the way to the sectional semi-finals, and on Sunday they looked like they are ready to make another deep tournament run.

"They are a real good program," Shawsheen coach Jim Sullivan said. "They did not have a good record, but anyone who knows baseball knows they play in a very strong league. They are used to playing in tournament style games in every game during the season."

The Rams, who were an outstanding hitting team all season, were held in check by Saugus junior righthander Dom Dipesa, who walked six, but also struck out nine Shawsheen batters on his way to his complete game one-hitter.

"He was a good pitcher and he had us frustrated," Shawsheen coach Jim Sullivan said. "He changed speeds well and he kept us off balance. I thought we had some great swings, but when we did connect it seemed like we hit the ball right at them. They are a good defensive team and they made the plays when they needed to."

The Rams are also normally a very good defensive team, but on Sunday their defense betrayed them and starting pitcher, senior Austin Cummings, who lost his first game of the season (5-1). Shawsheen made five errors in the game to help the Saugus cause.

"It is very uncharacteristic for us to make any errors in a game, let alone five," Sullivan said. "Throughout the season we had never done anything like that and this was clearly not a good time to do that."

The season may have ended badly, but when the Rams look back on this season, there will be far more good memories than bad. With a 10-2 record in the CAC, the Rams won the school's first CAC title since 2008, with their final two wins of the season coming in a dramatic 2-1 win over second place Whittier and a season finale win over arch rival Greater Lowell to clinch the title.

"The league was very strong this year," Sullivan said. "Whittier was very strong and Mystic Valley was very good as well. Greater Lawrence made the tournament and gave everybody fits all year, so being able to win this league is a great accomplishment this year."

And the Rams did not take the easy road to the league title, losing to Whittier early in the season in a heart-breaking extra inning game, before bouncing back to go on a great run and put themselves in position to win the league down the stretch.

"Most of the season we were in second place and we had to claw our way back into it," Sullivan said. "We had that big win over Whittier to put us into first and then we came through to beat Greater Lowell in another big game. I know the kids are disappointed right now, but it is something they will be able to take pride in for years to come."

Many local players were a very big part of the Rams success this season, with seniors Mike Bowse, Joe Vitale, Joe Sodergren and Joe Tower of Tewksbury, and seniors Frank Murray and Steve Reynolds of Wilmington being among the Rams top players.

White Sox edge Indians

Major League Baseball White Sox 4, Indians 3

Chris Grecco got off to a shaky start for the White Sox giving up three runs to the Indians in the first inning. However, he pulled him self together, and shut them out for the next 4.2 innings.

Joey Rebeiro came in to record the last out, and save the game. Grecco struck out 12, walked only two, while giving up five hits. Connor MacKenzie led the Sox attack with two hits, while J.J. Spiozuoco, Rebeiro, Steve Labao, and Kyle Kenyon also contributed basehits.

White Sox 4, Tigers 2

In an exciting pitching duel Connor MacKenzie outlasted Graham Smith in this well played contest. MacKenzie of the White Sox allowed only three hits, striking out eight, walking only two. He was supported by Steve Labao, who struck out the Tigers side in the sixth for a save. Smith was more than up to the task of matching MacKenzie, striking out 12 in 4.2 innings, walking five, and allowing only two hits.

The White Sox two hits came from J.J. Spiozuoco, and MacKenzie, who smashed his second Home Run of the season.

The Tigers three hits belonged to Andrew Dailio, Richie MacNamara, and a laser shot of a triple by Smith.

White Sox 5, Yankees 1

Joey Rebeiro pitched the streaking White Sox to their eighth straight win, and a share of first place, with a 5-1 win over the Yankees. In five innings Joey limited the Yankees to one run, two hits, and three walks. Kyle Kenyon came on to pitch a scoreless sixth inning. Rebeiro also had two hits, and scored two runs for the Sox. The offensive star for the Sox was J.T. Murray, who was 2-for-2, with three RBI's. Chris Grecco, Steve Labao, Kenyon, and Tommy Strow also had hits for the Sox.

Jason Dunn of the Yankees limited the Sox to one run in three strong innings of pitching. Connor Benoit, Cam Saragossa, and Dunn collected the Yankee hits.

Orioles 6, Yankees 1

Justin Trevesani led the way for the Orioles going five innings on the mound, giving up four hits, striking out four and not walking a batter. Christian Robarge came on to pitch a scoreless sixth for the Orioles.

Jason Dunn pitched well for the Yankees pitching three solid innings, only giving up one run and striking out six.

Orioles hitters included Matt Rideout (3 hits), Trevesani (2 hits), Conor Kilbride, Billy McEvoy, Brandon O'Donoghue, and Robarge. Yankees hitters were Jack Sweeney (2 hits), Connor Benoit, Danny Woods, and Carl Beatrice.

Oberg drafted by the Rockies

"This is so great for the kid," said Drouin. "It could not possibly have happened to a better person than Scotty Oberg. He is arguably the best player we have ever had, and as good as a baseball player he is, he's a better human being. The Rockies are getting a very good pitcher but more importantly a very good person. I'm just so thrilled for him and his family."

After graduating from TMHS, Oberg received a full athletic scholarship to UConn where he has enjoyed tremendous success, but all the while overcoming several injuries. In 2010 he was diagnosed with psoriatic arthritis and needed a cane to lift him out of bed each morning before the proper medication landed him back on his feet. Then last year, he had "Tommy John" surgery forcing him to miss the entire 2011 season.

"I came back pretty quickly, and didn't have too many setbacks," he said. "I was pretty pleased with my numbers, but that's only part of the game. I was trying to do everything with the team to get into the (NCAA) playoffs. We came up short."

This season he was named a NEIBA All-Star after closing games out for the Huskies. He finished the season with a 5-0 record, including an 0.99 ERA and nine saves. He appeared in 22 games, pitched 36.1 innings, giving up just 19 hits, 13 walks and four earned runs, while striking out 36 batters. The amazing stat is of the 19 hits he gave up, 17 were singles and the other two were doubles.

"His fastball approaches the mid 90's, and that is his bread-and-butter," said UConn coach Jim Penders. "He also has a dominant breaking ball and a very good change-up for lefties. He even tried out a little slider this spring that has the potential to be a plus pitch. His most effective thing is his confident presence on the mound as a bulldog of a competitor that rises to the occasion."

In his career at UConn, Oberg is 14-2 with a 1.59 ERA with ten saves. In 113 innings, he has given up just 87 hits and 20 earned runs, while walking 24 and striking out 77. In addition to pitching for UConn, during two off-seasons, he pitched for the Lowell All-Americans, and also helped the Bourne Braves capture the Cape Cod League title.

"Scott Oberg has been one of the best things that has happened to our program since I've been the head coach," said Penders. "He is as good a teammate and competitor as anyone I've ever had the pleasure of coaching. He is also one of the most mentally tough people I've ever known. He comes from a top-notch family and has had to overcome multiple obstacles in becoming one of the best collegiate pitchers in the country. I wouldn't trade him for anybody in college baseball. Whether he becomes a pro this summer or next, I'm very proud to be Scott's coach."

Until he officially starts his professional career, Oberg said the flow of phone calls and texts messages on Tuesday were certainly overwhelming, but coming from so many Tewksbury people, he certainly cherished every single one of them.

"This means everything to me," he said. "It's a great opportunity and I'm certainly blessed to be given the chance. I have played baseball my whole life, starting out with Tewksbury Youth Baseball, playing with the in-town leagues, going through the high school program and now through UConn. Playing professional baseball is something I have always dreamed about. This is a dream come true, and I'm extremely excited right now."

Stoneham and Winchester gear up for first Relay for Life

By RYAN LAROCHE

Two local communities are running their first relay this year. Not a track relay, but Relay for Life, an event to raise money for the American Cancer Society. Both Stoneham and Winchester will be participating for the first time, joining Woburn, Burlington and Wakefield as local communities who have been participants for many years.

Relay for Life is an overnight event where teams gather around a track. Members take turns walking around the track for the duration of the event. There is usually music, games and food.

In Stoneham, event chair Maureen McGinness said that Relay for Life originally started as a 24-hour event, but was shortened to a 12-hour event. It runs from 6 p.m. - 6 a.m. It takes place June 23 at the high school. In Winchester, it runs on June 16 at Ciarcia Field (located on Skillings Road near the high school) at the same time.

The reason it's an overnight event is because, as high school seniors from Winchester Nivedha Kumar and Jillian Stone told the Winchester School Committee, "Cancer never sleeps."

McGinness actually started out as a Relay chair in Burlington where she grew up.

However, she took some time off a few years ago to get married. In 2009, she turned her duties in Burlington over to "two capable women" - Tiffany Freeman and Cheryl Shafman.

Today, at the request of Nancy Prevost, Area Director of Development for the American Cancer Society, McGinness now heads up the first ever Relay for Life for Stoneham where she now lives with her husband and children, all of whom are involved. Her husband is a cancer survivor and her 9-year old daughter is a team captain. Her 12-year old step-son is part of a team for the first time.

Stoneham's goal, this being the first year, is to raise $50,000 (it used to be $15k for a first year community). Having raised $39,524 already, McGinness believes the $50k can be exceeded. The American Cancer Society gives each community goals, and one goal they gave Stoneham, beside raising the $50k, was to have 15 cancer survivors show up for the Relay.

McGinness said they already have 19 registered. That makes one goal completed and one goal almost completed.

Winchester has a goal of 30 teams. Superintendent William McAlduff told Kumar and Stone that the Relay is a "huge undertaking," but he thanked them for taking it on.

Both Superintendent McAlduff and School Committee member Michael Schindelman called the event terrific and a great opportunity. Kumar and Stone said the event was about raising money and awareness, but also a way to build community in the town.

According to www.relayforlife.org, the event starts with RELAY FOR LIFE - The Woburn Relay for Life was held last month at Library Park from Friday night at 6 p.m. until Saturday morning at 6 a.m. The cancer survivors and their families walked around Library Park's perimeter. Winchester and Stoneham host their inaugural relays June 16 and 23, respectively.

the "Survivor's Lap," a way to honor those who have survived and help everybody celebrate a victory over cancer. That is also a time to recognize caregivers who give their time, love, and support to friends, family, neighbors, and coworkers who face cancer.

At 9 p.m. is the Luminaria Ceremony which honors people who have been touched by cancer and is a time to remember loved ones lost. Candles are lit inside bags filled with sand, each one bearing the name of a person touched by cancer, and participants often walk a lap in silence.

At 10 p.m., teams begin their walk while a DJ plays music until 11 p.m. Besides the walk there is food and games. It's a family-friendly event designed to support those with cancer and those who've beaten cancer.

McGinness said Stoneham would have theme laps: prom, luau, etc. She also said many high school students, clubs and teams have volunteered and raised money including the drama club and boys track team.

In order to get things started, McGinness sent out an e-mail blast through the school system and got replies right away. She also had the support of the Board of Selectmen.

"The town was quick to pick it up," she exclaimed, noting that by March 28 Stoneham already had 12 teams registered and had raised $25k.

Leading up to the event, Stoneham has run several smaller events including Coaches vs. Cancer while also "painting the town purple" to raise awareness for the Relay for Life event. Both were successful, with Coaches vs. Cancer raising $1,312. $330 came from the Lexington varsity baseball and softball teams.

McGinness remarked that being the chair keeps her busy

"SNOW WHITE AND THE HUNTSMAN"

by Paul Feely

"SNOW WHITE AND THE HUNTSMAN" is stunning visually, but somber overall. Charlize Theron plays the queen, and Kristen Stewart is Snow White. Parents should know that this isn't a Disney fairy tale, but a dark, violent, moody story with a lot of death and mature themes.

"SNOW WHITE AND THE HUNTSMAN"
GRADE: **

"Snow White and the Huntsman" is stunning visually, but somber overall, mirroring the mood the queen casts over her kingdom.

In this reimagining of the classic tale of Snow White, a beautiful young princess is imprisoned after the forever-young Ravenna (Charlize Theron) seduces, marries, and then murders the king (Cary Elwes).

When the magic mirror informs the queen that the Fairest of Them All is now Snow White, who has come of age (Kristen Stewart), Ravenna sends her brother to kill the princess, but the girl manages to escape into the Dark Forest.

Ravenna angrily summons a huntsman (Chris Hemsworth) to capture Snow White - but at the last moment, he joins forces with her to evade the queen's guards. The two embark on a journey that eventually leads her to her beloved childhood friend, the duke's brave son, William (Sam Claflin), and seven fierce dwarfs - all of whom are ready to take up arms against the queen.

The cinematography is lush, and the landscapes - especially the fantastically creepy Dark Forest - are memorable. And like Tim Burton's finest, this is a film where costume plays a significant role.

Academy Award-winning costume designer Colleen Atwood's creations are amazing, especially Ravenna's elaborate gowns, which range from a royal wedding dress to a feathery black frock made up of crows. Even the seven dwarfs (all of whom are played by famous English character actors like Ian McShane, Ray Stevenson, Nick Frost, and Bob Hoskins) are outfitted in memorable gear.

Theron isn't just beautiful; she's a gifted actress capable of eliciting fear or desire just as easily. A former model, she can say a great deal with just the straightening of her back or an icy scowl.

Stewart pulls off the pure and fair of heart Snow White quite well. As for Hemsworth, he was born to play epic heroes (see Thor). But while the movie is well acted and a marvel for the eyes, it's also overlong and delves into one too many subplots that aren't properly resolved.

One of the most central, obviously, is whether Snow White's destined love is her lifelong friend William or the huntsman. It's refreshing that the romance isn't the movie's central preoccupation, but by the end it's clear that there would need to be a sequel just to figure out who's to be her man - not to mention address how a leader can heal a land so broken by years of ruin.

Parents should know that Snow White and the Huntsman isn't the sweet and colorful fairy tale made by Disney - this is a very dark, violent, moody story with a lot of death and mature themes. Theron's queen is more than evil, she's sadistic and vain and will kill or torture anyone in order to keep her magically eternal youth and beauty. The body count is quite high for a fairy tale.

"MEN IN BLACK 3"
GRADE: **

Was the movie-going public clamoring for a third installment of the Men in Black series? My guess is no. But Will Smith has decided to force-feed another serving upon us anyway, like a parent that thinks you don't eat enough vegetables.

This film isn't awful, but falls more into the category of unnecessary.

In Men in Black 3, Agents J (Will Smith) and K (Tommy Lee Jones) are back...in time. J has seen some inexplicable things in his 15 years with the Men in Black, but nothing, not even aliens, perplexes him as much as his wry, reticent partner.

But when K's life and the fate of the planet are put at stake, Agent J will have to travel back in time to put things right. J discovers that there are secrets to the universe that K never told him - secrets that will reveal themselves as he teams up with the young Agent K (Josh Brolin) to save his partner, the agency, and the future of humankind.

The original 'MIB', released in 1997, was a terrifically fun sci-fi comedy, with Jones and Smith teaming as agents of a secret organization that keeps Earth safe from bad aliens (and ensures the good ones stay safe, as well). The confirmation that your weird teachers were actually from another planet alone made it worth the price of admission.

The 2002 sequel ... not as good. So 10 years later, was there a reason to make a third installment? It's doubtful.

The good news is that it's better than the second "Men in Black." The bad news is: not a whole lot better. There are a couple clever ideas and a few funny moments, but it's hollow at its core.

When Smith's character goes back in time, he runs into the best part of the film - Josh Brolin, playing a young Agent K.

Brolin is near-perfection as a young Tommy Lee Jones. It's not just mimicry; his Agent K, while still stone-faced and withdrawn, is a little happier than the later model, and it intrigues J. What happened to you to change you, he asks several times? To which K replies, "I don't know. It hasn't happened yet."

Smith and Brolin have decent chemistry, and the final showdown between the agents and Boris clevelt incorporates the launch of Apollo 11.

"Men in Black III" isn't bad, not as bad as it could have been, but it's not exactly good, either.

"BATTLESHIP"
GRADE: **

It's not Shakespeare. But " Battleship" is big goofy summertime entertainment, quick on its feet while dishing out plenty of CGI-assisted mayhem, centered around a fight between heroic Navy men and women and the aliens who want to take over Earth.

Peter Berg (Friday Night Lights) produces and directs Battleship, an epic-scaled action-adventure that unfolds across the seas, in the skies and over land as humanity fights for survival against a superior force.

Inspired by the Hasbro naval combat game, Battleship stars Taylor Kitsch as Lt. Alex Hopper, a Naval officer assigned to the USS John Paul Jones; Brooklyn Decker as Sam Shane, a physical therapist and Hopper's fiancée; Alexander Skarsgård as Hopper's older brother, Stone, Commanding Officer of the USS Sampson; Rihanna as Petty Officer Raikes, Hopper's crewmate and a weapons specialist on the USS John Paul Jones; and Liam Neeson as Hopper and Stone's superior (and Sam's father), Admiral Shane.

The film begins with an amusing episode up front involving the hero (Kitsch), the blonde (Brooklyn Decker) and a chicken burrito.

Flash forward and the young hero is a Navy lieutenant involved with the blonde, whose father is an admiral (Neeson, very funny in the role). He's still a goof-off, and he's ready to be kicked out of the Navy, but just then aliens invade Earth, and his services are needed.

As one scientist points out, in painfully bad movie dialogue, "We're looking at an extinction-level event."

What the aliens didn't count on was a group of young but talented Naval officers ready to fight back at any cost.

It sounds like a dumb idea for a movie, and a not very original one at that. Surprisingly, though, Berg's film hits more than it misses. It's big. It's loud. And yes, it's dumb. But it also delivers the action.

It's pure summertime spectacle, and one that moves along at a nice clip once Berg gets his story up and running.

*MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

Which of these NHL players is not in the top ten all time list for power play goals in his career?

- (a) Dino Ciccarelli
- (b) Mario Lemieux
- (c) Wayne Gretzky
- (d) Teemu Selanne
- (e) Brendan Shanahan
- (f) Dave Andreychuk.

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•UMass Lowell senior Angus MacDonald (Methuen, Mass.) and the River Hawk 4X400 meter relay team earned All-American honors at the NCAA Division II Track and Field Championship at Colorado State-Pueblo's Neta and Eddie DeRose ThunderBowl.

Adams (Colo.) State won the team title with 77 points while Lincoln (Mo.) was the runner-up with 73 points.

MacDonald placed sixth in the 1,500 meters to earn All-America status for the 10th time in his career and for the first time in the 1,500. MacDonald, who placed 13th a year ago, ran the course in 4:15.59 as the field was hampered by 40 mile-an-hour winds. Senior Andrew Graham of Adams State won the title in 4:13.98.

Less three hours later, MacDonald ran the 5,000 meters in which he placed 13th in 16:09.25, struggling with the altitude difference.

"If you look at the results in the 1,500, Angus was the top non-altitude runner to finish," said head coach Gary Gardner. "The top five kids are altitude-trained runners. We knew the 1,500 was going to be a slow pace, and we figured he'd finish between fourth and sixth. We are very pleased.

"In the 5,000, Angus just didn't have the lungs," Gardner added. "After the first mile, he knew he was in big trouble. But our main goal this year was the 1,500, and we accomplished that."

Seeded 10th, UMass

Lowell's 4X400 meter relay team placed fifth in 3:11.46 to earn All-American honors for the sixth time in the last eight NCAA indoor and outdoor championships, including the third straight year.

Senior Craig Bennett (Milton, Mass.), a member of the last three All-America teams, led off with a 49.6-second leg while sophomore Tim Regan (Sandwich, Mass.) followed in 47.4 seconds. Sophomore Keith Lewis (Nashua, N.H.) ran a 47.4 second split while FRESHMAN RYAD BENCHEIKH (WOBURN, MASS.) anchored in 46.9 and passed three teams on his leg.

The River Hawks edged out Northeast-10 Conference rival American International College, which took sixth in 3:11.53.

"The 4X400 relay was all about place," said Gardner. "To place fifth with who we had out here was amazing. This was half the team we had at the NCAA indoors (in which UMass Lowell placed second)."

UMass Lowell qualified for the 4X400 without JUNIOR EVAN WHITE (TEWKSBURY, MASS.) and senior Jeff Wundt (Southwick, Mass.), who are nursing injuries.

St. Augustine's (Fla.) won the 4X400 in 3:07.15.

Sophomore Candace Greene (Annapolis, Md.) placed 13th in the shot put as she threw for a distance of 46 feet, 1.5 inches on her third attempt. In a strong field, senior Kayla Muyskens of Central Missouri won the shot with a toss of 52' 6.5" while junior Sam Lockhart of Grand Valley State took second with a throw of 52' 1.25".

"Candace threw OK. I think she just needs more experience," Gardner said. "Jacqui Barrett (WOBURN) (2010 NCAA shot put champion) was the same way. It's a maturity thing and it will come for Candace."

• L E S L E Y UNIVERSITY'S JENNA FRALICK (WOBURN, MA/WOBURN) and Jennifer Dorval (Franklin, NH/Franklin) have been named New England Collegiate Conference Player of the Year and NECC Pitcher of the Year, respectively, the league announced this afternoon.

For the second season in a row, the Lynx sent five players to the NECC First Team, including Dorval and center fielder Gabrielle Brixey (Coalinga, CA/West Hills, CC) for a second year in a row, designated player Emily Mangiaratti (Amherst, MA/Amherst) for the third straight season, and Fralick and second base player Jessica Guevara (Nantucket, MA/Nantucket) for the first time.

In her first full season, catcher Allison Fountain (Cheshire, CT/Cheshire) was named to the All-NECC Second Team.

Improving on last season's NECC Second Team honors, Fralick led the league in batting with a robust .549 average during league games while playing a flawless hot corner to the tune of a 1.000 fielding percentage. The switch hitter was a perfect 11-11 in stolen base attempts in NECC games, finishing second with nine walks, third with 28 hits and ninth with 17 RBI.

Overall, the senior co-captain is tied for second in the league in batting at .440 on the year, ranks fifth with 17 stolen bases and seventh with 33 runs.

•Need some help with the trivia question? It's not Brendan Shanahan.

•UMASS LOWELL SOPHOMORE RACHEL MCCARTHY (READING, MASS.) has been selected to join USA Field Hockey's New England High Performance Training Center. McCarthy is one of the first Division II players to be named to one of USA's High Performance Training Centers.

"We extremely proud of Rachel for this amazing accomplishment," said head coach Shannon Hleibichuk. "This is a fantastic opportunity for her to train and compete with the best field hockey players in New England.

These training sessions will not only help to improve her game, but the skills and knowledge she will bring back will help our team as a whole."

In 2011, McCarthy was named a Longstreth/National Field Hockey Coaches Association Division II Second Team All-American and Synapse Sports' First Team All-American. She led the Northeast-10 Conference with 56 points and 18 assists, while ranking second with 19 goals.

Through her first two seasons, McCarthy has totaled 88 points in 47 career matches and played in back-to-back National Championship games, including a perfect 24-0 campaign in 2010 to earn the program's second-ever NCAA Championship.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION:

The answer is C, Wayne Gretzky.

Relay from S-1

and adds some stress to her life, but "when the day comes, you don't remember (the stress)." Fortunately, she has a committee of approximately 20 people who help out. She said one goal was to grow that committee.

The American Cancer Society recommends a person be chair for two years, then turn it over to someone else. After turning the chair position over to Freeman and Shafman in Burlington, McGinness said their goal is to raise $147k. They have approximately $120k already, so their goal seems to be within reach.

As with most communities, Stoneham has planned entertainment for the Relay: music, the Shriners clowns, and the high school mascot (Sporty Spartan). Plus, they will be offering massages. McGinness also planned to rent a bouncy house for the children.

Though it took a few weeks, Winchester's School Committee granted the town permission to use Ciarcia Field once the neighbors had been notified. A letter sent out to the neighborhood said that quiet hour would start at 10 p.m. and last all night.

Superintendent McAlduff "enthusiastically" requested approval.

Winchester's Relay is being planned in partnership with the Winchester Youth Center and Connect & Commit (the high school service-learning program). They hope to get 10 participants for each of their 30 teams.

Though a team event, Relay for Life actually began with one man in Tacoma, Washington running for 24 hours around the track at Baker Stadium at the University of Puget Sound in May of 1985. Friends and family all showed up and offered $25 to walk for 30-minutes with him.

The man, Dr. Gordy Klatt, a colorectal surgeon, wanted to enhance the income of his local American Cancer Society office and to show support for all of his patients who had battled cancer. He decided to personally raise money for the fight by doing something he enjoyed - running marathons.

While running, Dr. Klatt envisioned a 24-hour team relay event (which has subsequently been shortened to 12 hours). The following year, 19-teams took part in the first team Relay event on the track at the Stadium Bowl and raised $33,000.

Today, Stoneham and Winchester will participate in their first Relay for Life raising thousands of dollars for cancer research and celebrating the lives of those who lost their lives to the disease, those who beat it, and those who continue to fight.

Lynnfield and North Reading students graduate from St. John's Preparatory School

Danvers - St. John's Preparatory School held its 102nd Commencement exercises on Sunday, May 20 at 11 am. Headmaster Edward P. John's Prep since it was founded in 1907. This wisdom challenges you to advocate for justice, embrace diversity, pursue excellence, and place your gifts at the service of those in need."

Anne Burridge of Newburyport, a member of the English Department faculty, delivered the Commencement address. Burridge has taught at St. John's since 2002.

Are school lunches becoming healthier?

Grilled cheese on a pretzel bun; maple burst pancakes; cold nachos; breaded chicken nuggets - these are some of the lunch options in school cafeterias across the country. Following streamlined government regulations aimed to make school lunches healthier, some parents are left scratching their heads wondering if anything has changed.

In January 2012, First Lady Michelle Obama and Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack unveiled new standards for school meals that will result in healthier meals for kids across the nation. The new meal requirements will raise standards for the first time in more than 15 years and are expected to improve the health and nutrition of nearly 32 million kids that participate in school meal programs every school day. The healthier meal requirements are a key component of the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act, which was championed by the First Lady as part of her Let's Move! campaign and signed into law by President Obama. The new standards align school meals with the latest nutrition science and the real-world circumstances of America's schools, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The USDA indicates that there are a few main components of the new lunch and breakfast standards:

- * Offer students both fruits and vegetables every day of the week.

- * Substantially increase offerings of whole grain-rich foods.

- * Offer only fat-free or low-fat milk varieties.

- * Limit calories based on the age of the children being served to ensure proper portion size.

- * Increase the focus on reducing the amounts of saturated fat, trans fats and sodium.

These changes are not perfect, but many believe they are a step in the right direction. Some parents, however, feel the new stipulations are not stringent enough, particularly when it comes to work-arounds for some of the new policies. For example, syrupy canned fruit cocktails that are high in sugar count toward the fruit requirement in many schools.

Sodium content is another bone of contention. Research indicates that lowering sodium levels can reduce the risk of cardiovascular disease and hypertension. To adhere to the new lunch program, schools will have to cut sodium in lunches by more than 50 percent within 10 years. Currently, elementary school lunches contain roughly 1,300 mg of sodium. The goal is to lower that to 1,230 mg by the 2014/2015 school year, gradually dropping to 935 mg by 2017. Many parents and health experts feel sodium levels are not going down fast enough.

The new plan will also extend nutrition standards outside of the cafeteria. Foods and beverages sold in vending machines and through other venues on campus must also be modified to adhere to a healthy diet.

Canadians may learn from the trials in the United States should they develop their own school lunch programs. Canada remains the only westernized nation without a federally funded school food program. The reason Canada has not developed a national school food strategy (or even a coordinated provincial and territorial program) is that no single ministry takes responsibility for food. Students can bring their own lunches or choose among fast food in cafeterias or snacks from vending machines.

One company taking advantage of the United States' new school lunch standards is Domino's Pizza. It has developed its "Smart Slice" school lunch program, which meets the revised standards set by the USDA. Freshly baked and delivered to schools, "Smart Slice" features multiple nutritious ingredients like whole-grain crust, light mozzarella cheese and reduced sodium sauce. Reduced sodium pepperoni is also available. More than 3,000 schools in 37 states participate in this food program.

Although many changes have been put in place to make school lunches healthier, not all parents think these changes are sufficient. Parents who have concerns about school lunches can prepare lunches for their children that meet their personal standards.

walls. A masonry fireplace adds warmth and color when needed.

This space is open to the kitchen, where a raised and gently curved eating bar and a lower ceiling mark the boundary. It's a long galley kitchen with a built-in desk in the sunny nook. Standing at the kitchen sink, you face into the great room.

Laundry appliances are close at hand, hidden behind pocket doors at the rear. Just inside the back door, a bench fits into an alcove. Boot storage is below and coat hooks are above. A coat closet hides under the stairway leading to the loft and upper bathroom.

Two bedrooms, or a studio and a bedroom, are on the ground floor. The larger room is vaulted and has a pass-through closet that leads directly to the bathroom.

This plan is well-suited for use as a vacation get-away, or a fulltime home for a single person or small family.

9th Annual Reading Friends and Family Day!

The Reading Lions Club's Reading Friends and Family Day 2012 is just a few weeks away! This 9th annual start of summer event takes place on Saturday, June 16, 2012 in the Birch Meadow Area. From an early morning kid's run to the late evening fireworks, you can look forward to a fun-filled day of activities, entertainment and information for all ages.

Since 2004, The Reading Lions Club has sponsored and organized Reading Friends and Family Day, also known as Town Day. This has now become a true community event as many groups have stepped up to both participate and become major sponsors. Close to 80 organizations share in this exciting Reading event.

This year's activities begin with the FORR Kids Fun Run. See the FORR website for more information, <http://www.forr01867.org>.

Reading Friends and Family Day Booths and Entertainment are open 11:00 A.M. through 3:00 P.M. Check out the booth area for Big Daddy's Remote Control Race Cars, Laser Tag, Boy Scout rope bridge, train and pony rides, jumpy house, tours of town vehicles, dance and karate demonstrations. Ongoing activities include: a dunk tank, kids building activity, face painting, summer reading sign up, arts and crafts and more. In addition to all the fun activities this is a chance to find out what is going on in your town!

Representatives from many organizations and town departments will be on hand to share information on town happenings, education, safety, trails, health, conservation and lots of meet and greet opportunities with local officials.

Residents of all ages will enjoy a full day of food, drawings, giveaways and demonstrations! When you need a break from all the excitement, grab a snack and head over to the Entertainment Stage.

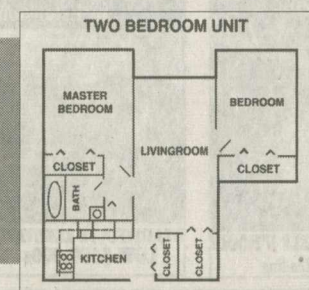

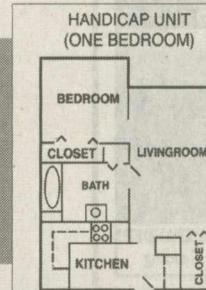

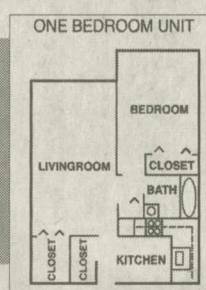

Once again Reading Friends and Family will finish with a bang! The Friends of Reading Recreation and the Reading Recreation Department worked together to sponsor the fourth annual fireworks performance! From 7:00 - 9:00 there will be live entertainment with Alan and the Alligators and then the fireworks!

Over the past 9 years Reading Friends and Family Day has more than doubled the amount of presenters and participants! Don't miss this opportunity to share a great day with your neighbors and friends. For more information contact

This Week's Sampler: Cedar View

Charming Cedar View compact, versatile

The Cedar View is a charming and delightfully unusual small home. For starters, you can't help but notice the intriguing interplay of textures and shapes.

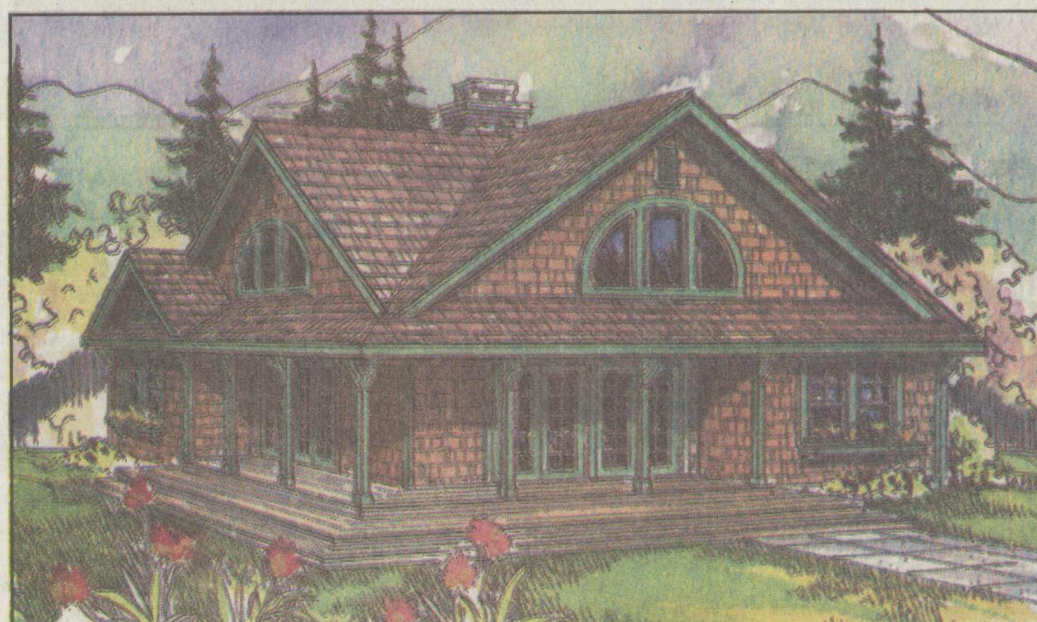

Nostalgic shake shingles contrast with smooth upright posts, decorative corbels, and a stone veneer chimney. Satiny half-round windows nestle under triangular gables on three sides.

Two sets of French doors open onto a covered porch and deck that face the street and wrap around to span most of the left side. Another foursome of French doors accesses this side as well, for a grand total of eight French doors!

All eight open into the bright, airy two-story great room, bathing this space in natural light. And more light spills down through the two large half-rounds high on the

to S-7

This vacation retreat is a small cedar-sided craftsman home plan by guest designer Tim Thompson with a wrap-around porch. Four sets of double doors open into a two-story great room with a fireplace. Kitchen and nook are also open to this large space. Two bedrooms and a bathroom are at rear; roomy loft and second bathroom fill upper floor. Please note: Featured guest designers have different drafting styles, therefore construction drawing layouts and contents will vary according to the region from which they originate.
